Daily Democrat.

STILL MISREPRESENTING.

For the last three years the Oregonian has been asserting that the Mills bill was so adjusted as to favor the eastern manufacturers and against the western farmer. and especially against the wool grower of the north-west. Time and again has the statement been denied in these columns and that paper challenged to prove its assertion, but it has dodged this denial but continued to repeat its allegation. It thus presumes that its readers are ignorant, and that this ignorance will enable it to stay discontented republicans in their party. Its boast is that the Mills bill was in the interest of eastern manufacturers and against the wool grower while the Mc-Kinley bill was adjusted in the interest of the wool grower and against the interest of the eastern manufacturer. This we deny. Then let us examine the facts bearing upon this issue.

When Mills introduced his bill, the then existing average duty on wool was 34 per cent and the then existing average duty on woolen goods was 70 per cent. The difference then in the duty for the wool grower and the eastern manufacturer was 36 per cent in favor of the manufacturer. Mills put wool on the free list and reduced the duty on woolen goods from 70 to 40 per cent. He thus cut off 32 per cent protection from the wool grower and 30 per cent protection from the eastern manufacturer, a difference of 2 per cent in favor of the eastern manufacturer. Now what did McKinley do? He increased the duty on wool, (average duty,) from 34 to 40 per cent and increased the average duty on woolen goods from 70 to 91 cent. Thus Mills made a change of 2 per cent In favor of the eastern manufacturer while McKinley gave the eastern manufacturer a net gain of 15 per cent over the woolgrower, thus showing that the McKinley bill was more favorable to the eastern man ufacturer than the Mil's bilt. It should be borne in mind that the wool growers and manufacturers constitute but a small portion of the population of the United States. The consumers of woolen goods constitute the whole mass of the people. The whole mass of the people are entitled to greater consideration from the law making power of the land than a small portion of that population is. The laborer who has nothing but his labor to depend upon for a living is entitled to all the privileges and immunities of citizenship that belong to rich eastern manufacturers or the owners of the sheep and cattle of a thousand hills. But it is the universal rule that when the advantages and disadvantages of protection are discussed the protectionists entirely ignore the consumer and laborer as though he had no rights that the devotees of protectionism were bound to respect. The Oregonian in attempting to explain the remarkable change In political sentiment in Rhode Island which change is demonstrated in the face that in 1883 the republican plurality was 4438, and prior to that time it was 6000 to 8000 and since which time the democrats have secured pluralities at each annual election. It first says that this change in favor of the democrats arises from the fact that property qualification for voters being removed, added a large number of foreign born voters to the native born voters and the natural result was an increase in the demozratic vote. Then that paper pretends to find another reason for this increase in the democratic vote, which is that the Mills bill was very favorable to manufacturers which induced them to renounce republicanism and vote the democratic ticket. This, as shown above, is not true, because McKinley favored these manufacturers more than Mills. The truth is the Mills more than Mills. The truth is the Mills bill did not become a law, and hence could not have affected the vote of Rhode Island like the McKinley bill did which become a law. That paper is right when it assumes that it was the tariff question that caused the great change that has been going on in that state, and in fact that has been taking in all the states. But it is not manufacturers who have changed. These have been to abundantly provided for to kick. It is the great body of consumers, the great mass of labor people who work to day to get the money to pay for the bread they.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.—
Notice is hereby given that the cool of Cox, W A Cox and C H Hoberg, in Albany, Oregon, under the firm name of Cox Bros & Co, is this day dissolved by mutual our chased the online right, title and interest of the said D U tox and W A Cox, therein. C H Hoberg assumes all the the obligations of the late firm, and all the states. But it is not manufacturers who have changed, These have been to abundantly provided for to kick. It is the great body of consumers, the great mass of labor people who work to day to get the money to pay for the bread they. ate yesterday who have ceased to vote the republican ticket in Rhode Island, and in fact all over the country. And this leaven of enlightenment is not confined to Rhode Island. It is making itself felt in Iowa Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota and other northwestern states as well as New England. To thinking men it is the handwriting on the wall that marks the death of the curse of protectionism. Day by day the propagators of the scheme of taxing one man for the benefit of another will see it weakening until it shall be discarded by an outraged and indignant public.

Thomas Bedford of Hendricks county, ndlana, claims to be the oldest living Odd Fellow in the world. He was 84 years old yesterday, and the local lodge presented him with a handsome badge of ancient Odd Felloscahip. He was made a member of the order at the age of 21 in Philadelphia.

IN A HOLE.

Mr M M Harris, secretary of the Tammany Mr M M Harris, secretary of the Tammany society of Portland, says: "Our prospects, owing to the tariff issue, are very good to carry Oregon. We shall make our fight on tariff reform; not on free traile, mind you, for that would ruin the country, out on necessary and legitimate tariff reform. This means, it may be supposed, that the "fight" will be made to out everything that Oregon produces on the free list, but to continue protection to the eastern manufacturers. This was what was meant here by the democracy in the last political contest, by "necessary and legitimate tariff reform."—Oregonian.

Why does not the Oregonian have the or-

Why does not the Oregenian have the ordinary honesty to tell its readers that McKinley did much better for the eastern manufactu rers than Mills proposed to do in his bill? Mc-Kinley increased the average duty on woolen goods from 68 to 91 per cent, while Mills in his till provided for a reduction of from 68 to 40 per cent. The same partiality was shown in cotton goods etc.

The Oregonian like all protection papers finds itself in a hole when it talks about the tariff.

SECTIONAL.

The provision in the McKinley bill relative The provision in the McKinley bill relative to sugar went into effect on the 1st instant, and the effects on this article, which is of daily consumption, will soon be felt. Cheaper sugar will be a great benefit to the power classes, and will be duly appreciated by them. Our people if they can have cheap food can afford to buy American clothing at as low a a price as foreign to support home industries. Monutaineer.

But owing to the advantages of "protection" to the refiner provided for in Bill McKinley's bill it is highly problematical whether we shall have cheap sugar or not. But if free trade in ugar will make it cheaper, and this cheapness is a great benefit to the poor, why not make, umber, salt, coal, woolen goods, tin, binding wine, jute sacks and other things free in order that they might also be cheap? Would not the poor duly appreciate such cheapness? The Mountaineer is purely partisan and sectional, It is in favor of free trade in southern products and protection for northern products,
