Every manufacturer of oatmeal in Ohlo will contribute liberally to the expenses of McKinlev's campaign if that gentleman be bold enough to run for governor this fail. The little Plon-Plon gave these petted manufacturers an increase of 20 per cent protection by his new tariff. But the reports of the treasury show that the exports of catmeal for 1890 were more than ten times as heavy as the imports, the figures being: Imports, 2,372,106 pounds; exports, 25,460,322 pounds. It would tax even the ingenuity of McKinley to demonstrate the accessity of a tariff for the protection of manufacturers who thus export more than ien times as much as is imported of their product. Of course it is evicent that foreign buyers of the oatmest produced in this country pay less for their supplies of this article then protected Americans. But
