

INEXPERIENCE.

An able young republican, with an office in the neighborhood of the city hall, says the Detroit Free Press, wanted to go down into Ohio to make a stump speech or two during the campaign to sort of get his hand in for future usefulness, don't you know; but he didn't make it. He prepared what he thought was a brilliant effort, and submitted it to an old wheel-horse in politics who was selecting stump talent.

"Rats!" exclaimed the old hand when the young man went around to see him after he had read the speech.

"What's the matter?" exclaimed the shocked applicant.

"Take that speech away and hide it till you get older and know more."

"What's the matter with it? It's a good speech, and I was a whole week in getting it ready."

"Good nothing!" blustered the old one. "It's lacking in the very first principles of a political speech."

"Show me where it is wrong."

"Aw! It's wrong all over; and right at the end where the work ought to be you've quered the whole business."

"In what way?"

"Why, look at it," and he pointed at the offending passage. "There you say with a grand flourish: 'And it is only reasonable that the people, and especially the farmers, should feel a profound and heartfelt gratitude to an all-wise and beneficent Providence for the abundant crops which cover the fields with fatness and smile at the generous graneries waiting to receive them.'"

"Isn't that all right?"

"Of course it isn't. You don't know a little bit. Providence is not in it. You ought to have credited all that to the McKinley bill and the republican administration, where it belonged. 'A beneficent Providence' indeed! You make me tired. Here, take your speech. We can't trust you away from home till you've cut your wisdom teeth."

Gov Campbell, of Ohio, made a speech the other day in which he drew a picture of two farmers with 10,000 bushels of wheat each. One started out from Bombay, India, and the other from Ohio with Liverpool for their destination. Each received for his wheat $10,000. Each purchased with his money such goods as he wanted. The man from Bombay returns home with his $10,000 worth of goods happy and contented. The man from Ohio starts home with his $10,000 worth of goods but he is stopped at the custom house at New York and forced to give up $5,000 before he can have them admitted to the country. Thus, though they both received the same price for their wheat it takes 15,000 bushels of American wheat to equal 10,000 bushels of the India man's wheat at Liverpool. All this comes from the beneficent policy of protection.

The minister of the gospel fails to please all of his parishioners. There are those in his congregation that could improve the sermon. The school teacher fails to please his patrons. There are patrons who could easily improve upon the methods of instruction. The newspaper man fails to please all his readers. There are many readers who could make a better paper, and so it is in all professions or callings, generally those who know least about a business, know, in their own estimation, most about how it should be run. Notwithstanding all this, when a man wants to learn how to sharpen a plow he goes to a blacksmith.

It is a little late in the season for fish stories, but a farmer near Corydon tells one which is worthy of notice. He states that while passing through a field he noticed a commotion in a pond which several cows were standing. Upon investigation he found that the commotion in the water was caused by sunfish jumping upon the sides of the cows after flies. He says that the fish would cling to the hair on the cows' sides for some time, and all that was necessary to get a good string of fish was to drive the cows out on shore and pick the fish off.

Mr Andrew Carnegie says he is a firm believer in the doctrine that the young men of America should take their holidays away from their own country, so that the cobwebs can be entirely swept out of their eyes. Mr Carnegie ought to bear in mind that not all the young men of America are the beneficiaries of a high tariff. The great majority of them have to stay at home and work for a living.

One of the most amusing things that meets the newspaper man's eye is to see the man who never "subscribes" standing on the streets watching for the carrier to deliver the daily paper on the business man's counter where he is the first to step up and "borrow" it and then sit for half an hour or an hour completely absorbed in reading it, then all of a sudden throw it down with an air of disgust, put on a miserable face and declare there is nothing in it.

A tax payer of Albany who does not seem to have the fear of the city council before his eyes asks laconically what use the Ferry street sewer is to be put to.

It takes not less than 15,000 cords of wood to supply Albany with a year's supply.

Pimples.

The old idea of 49 years ago was that facial eruptions were due to "blood humor," for which they gave potash. This all the old Sarsaparillas contain potash, a most objectionable and drastic mineral, that instead of decreasing actually creates more eruptions. You have noticed this when taking other Sarsaparillas than Joy's. It is however now known that the stomach, the blood creating power, is the seat of all vitiating or cleansing operations. A stomach clogged by indigestion or constipation, vitiates the blood, result pimples. A clean stomach and healthful digestion purifies it and they disappear. Thus Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is compounded after the modern idea to regulate the bowels and stimulate the digestion. The effect is immediate and most satisfactory. A short testimonial to contrast the action of the potash Sarsaparillas and Joy's modern vegetable preparation. Mrs. C. D. Stuart, of 400 Hayes St., S. E., writes: "I have for years had indigestion, I tried a popular Sarsaparilla but it actually caused more pimples to break out on my face. Hearing that Joy's was a later preparation and acted differently, I tried it and the pimples immediately disappeared."
