A Severe Law.

The English people look more closely to the genuineness of these staples than we do. In fact, they have a law under which they make seizures and destroy adulterated products that are not what they are represented to be. Under this statute thousands of pounds of tea have been burned because of their wholesale adulteration.

Tea, by the way, is one of the most notoriously adulterated articles of commerce. Not alone are the bright, shiny green teas artificially colored, but thousands of pounds of substitutes for tea leaves are used to swell the bulk of cheap teas, and willow twigs, lemon leaves, etc., are used.

These teas, except from the manufacturers are cheap and still retain some elements of health and flavor. Some adulterated teas are included from the tea houses kept, sold, and made over and find their way into the tea bags.

The English government attempts to stamp out this adulteration, but as tea is too popular, and the adulterated tea probably does not cost more than the pure tea, the law is unenforced in America.

Beech's Tea is manufactured with the guarantee that it is pure and unadulterated; in fact, the purity has been ascertained and simple test papers have been prepared, showing about one third less of it being required for an infusion than of the adulterated tea, and its fragrance and exquisite flavor is at once apparent. It will be a revelation to you. In order that its purity and quality may be guaranteed, it is sold only in pound packages bearing this trademark.
