A Severe Law.

The English people look more closely to the genuineness of these staples than we do. In fact, they have a law under which they make seizures and destroy adulterated products that are not what they are represented to be. Under this statute thousands of pounds of tea have been burned because of their wholesale adulteration.

Tea, by the way, is one of the most notoriously adulterated articles of commerce. Not alone are the bright, shiny green teas artificially colored, but thousands of pounds of substitutes for tea leaves are used to swell the bulk of cheap teas, and will, unless they bear their usual common use, cost, excepting in the case of such teas as are colored and sold in tea. Even extended tea leaves are used in the tea houses and kept, and the adulterated tea is sent into the market.

The English government has made a law to prevent this, and by so doing has set an example that is well worth our imitation. In fact, the standard of tea is so high and simple. Its purity because of its strength, about one-third of it being required for an infusion, because of its medicinal use, and its fragrance and agreeable flavor that once apparent, it will be a revelation to you. In order to insure purity and quality may be guaranteed, it is sold only in pound packages bearing this seal.

Lower Beam

the sense in which that term is used, it is a permanent beautifier, it makes the complexion several shades lighter, and protects from the sun and wind, and prevents sunburn and black heads will never come while you use it. It gives the face a better than soap and water, and it is the skin tissue and prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the complexion a clearness and smoothness of skin that you will never see in any other preparation. It contains no acid, powder or alkali, and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00, at all druggists and hairdressers, or at Mrs. Gervaise Graham's establishment, 103 Post street San Francisco, where she treats ladies for all blemishes of the face of figure. Ladies at a distance treated by letter. Send stamp for her little book "How to be Beautiful."
