

STRONGLY STATED.

The following is an extract from a speech made by Mr Cleveland on Jackson Day in New York City. It is worthy a most careful perusal:

"Mr President and Gentlemen: No one can question the propriety of the celebration of this day by the organization whose invitation has called us together. The democratic zest and enthusiasm of the celebration of the day grows out of the fact that the battle of New Orleans was won under the generalship of Andrew Jackson. It is well that there are occasions like this where we may manifest that love and affection for Andrew Jackson which have a place in every democratic heart.

It is useless to attempt an explanation of this love and affection; they are democratic instincts. So strong is our conviction that Jackson's democracy derived its strength and vigor from the steadfast courage, the honesty of purpose and the sturdy persistency which characterized the man, that we willingly profess the belief that the same conditions are essential to the usefulness and success of the democratic party in these latter days. Thus, wherever party principle or policy may lead us, we have constantly before us an unquestioned example of the spirit in which our work should be undertaken.

The democratic party has lately declared to the people that if it were trusted and invested with power, their burdens of taxation should be lightened, and that a better and more just distribution of benefits should be assured to them. There is no doubt that we have received their trust and confidence on the faith of our promises.

We, who are proud to call ourselves Jacksonian democrats, have boldly and aggressively attacked a political heresy, opposed to the best interests of the people and defended by an arrogant and unscrupulous party. The fight is still on.

We should be steadfast to the issue we have raised until it is settled, and rightly settled. The steadfastness we need will not permit a premature and distracting search for other and perplexing questions, nor will it allow us to be tempted or driven by the enemy into new and tangled paths. We have given pledges to the people and they have trusted us. The service we undertook was not to advise those waiting for better days that their cause was hopeless, or under any pretext to suggest a cessation of efforts. Our engagement was to labor incessantly, bravely and stubbornly, seeing nothing and considering nothing but ultimate success.

These pledges and promises should be faithfully and honestly kept. Party faithlessness is party dishonor. I hope, then, I may venture to state in this assembly that, even if there had been but slight encouragement for the cause we have espoused, there would be no justification for timidity and faint-heartedness. With the success we have already achieved, amounting to a political revolution, it seems to me that it would be the height of folly, considered purely as a question of party management, to relax in the least our determination and persistency.

If we suspect anywhere in our councils compromising hesitation, or a disposition to divert the unity of party efforts, let us be watchful. The least retreat bodes disaster. Cowardice is often called conservatism, and an army scattered into sections invites defeat. I believe our countrymen are prepared to act on principle are in no mood for political maneuvering. They demand a plain and simple statement of political purposes. If, inspired by the same Jacksonian spirit, we hold the doctrine that party honesty is party duty, and party courage, party expediency, we shall win a sure and lasting success through the deserved support of a discriminating, intelligent and thoughtful people.

The democratic convention at Portland Saturday was a noisy one, and the proceedings at times were entirely too boisterous to be taken as an example by the YMCA meetings, nevertheless the boys all meant to do right and conducted themselves in the way they did because they believed they were resisting an attempt to put a collar around their necks. It is most certain that the collar was an imaginary one. nevertheless they exhibited their democratic resentment all the same.

The origin of card playing is uncertain. It is said to have been brought to Viterbo in 1379. Cards were illuminated for Charles VI. of France, 1392, then depressed in mind. Cards were first taxed in England 1710.

The most violent thunder storm in the world occur in French Guiana. The thunder there in an ordinary storm is almost deafening, while peal follows peal in quick succession.

With 1892 comes in the 49th anniversary of the beginning the very initial point of American history. It is a far cry from the October of 1492 to that of 1892.

ANOTHER VICTORY

At Tanager is a Literary and Debating society. On last Saturday evening it debated the following question:

"Resolved that a high protective tariff benefits the wage laborers in manufacturing and industrial pursuits." There were three speakers on side and their time was unlimited. A correspondent of the DEMOCRAT says: "After a lengthy discussion, the question was unanimously settled in the negative. These two interests, wool growing and labor, according to the gospel of high protectionists among those reaping the greatest benefits from high tariffs. It seems to me that if we can knock these two interests out of the list of those so blessed by high tariff taxes that it leaves high protection about in the same condition as the soldier's old musket that was so well worn that there was nothing left but the touch hole.

The Mountaineer in a spirit of great despondency, asks: "Shall we give up growing wool?" Well, we are really afraid we will, if we permit McKinley or any of his coal-fighters to make another increase of the duty on that article, and a still greater increase relatively on woolen goods. Since McKinley's bill went into operation wool has sold at from 2 to 4 cents less on the pound. That's one fact we would have the Mountaineer puzzle its partisan mentality on. Another fact is that since that bill has been in operation there has been an increase in the importation of wool to the amount of over thirty million pounds and a decrease in the amount of woolen goods of over $25,000,000. If the Mountaineer will study these facts with that degree of intelligence and non-partisan feeling necessary to arrive at a correct conclusion it will repeat its question with a doubly increased emphasis. But it knocks its tariff views into smithereens, all the same.

The invention of gunpowder is generally ascribed to Bertholdus or Michael Schwartz, a Cordelier monk of Goslar, south of Brunswick in Germany, about 1320. But many writers maintain that it was known much earlier in various parts of the world. Some say that the Chinese and Hindus possessed it centuries before.

The Empress of Germany has declined to become president of the association for dress reform. She thinks that the present style of dress is becoming and healthful, and that corsets are a restful support, without which women would be seriously uncomfortable.

Pimples.

The old idea of 40 years ago was that facial eruptions were due to a "blood humor," for which they gave potash. Thus all the old Sarsaparillas contain potash, a most objectionable and drastic mineral, that instead of decreasing, actually creates more eruptions. You have noticed this when taking other Sarsaparillas than Joy's. It is however now known that the stomach, the blood creating power, is the seat of all vitiating or cleansing operations. A stomach clogged by indigestion or constipation, vitiates the blood, result pimples. A clean stomach and healthful digestion purifies it and they disappear. Thus Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is compounded after the modern idea to regulate the bowels and stimulate the digestion. The effect is immediate and most satisfactory. A short testimonial to contrast the action of the potash Sarsaparillas and Joy's modern vegetable preparation. Mrs. C. D. Stuart, of 400 Hayes St., S. F., writes: "I have for years had indigestion, I tried a popular Sarsaparilla but it actually caused more pimples to break out on my face. Hearing that Joy's was a later preparation and acted differently, I tried it and the pimples immediately disappeared."
