B. W. Baldwin, Carnesville, Tenn., writes: I have used your German Syrup in my family, and find it the best medicine I ever tried for coughs and colds. I recommend it to everyone for these troubles.

FACTS ABOUT THE TEA WE DRINK.

But few people know that there is such a thing as uncolored tea in existence, and fewer have seen it. But there is, and it is of all teas the sweetest, purest, and most fragrant. You ask at once how it is that it is not offered for sale and that you know nothing of it. That is answered easily; but it is necessary to present first a few details. The public only knows two general classes, viz., the green and the black tea.

Green Tea.

Few people know that the bright bluish-green color of the ordinary tea exposed in the windows is not the natural color. Unpleasant as the fact may be, it is nevertheless artificial; Prussian blue, silica, gypsum, plumbago, and other unwholesome mineral colors being used for this purpose. The effect is twofold. It not only makes the tea bright, shiny, attractive green, but also permits the use of "off-color" and worthless tea, which, once under the green cloak, are readily worked off as a good quality of tea. The horrible coloring practice even admits of the use of foreign substances, and the English government, which looks closer into the genuineness of the staples than our, has in some of the alleged "best" of teas found refined leaves, straw, fragments of matting, rice-husk, and willow leaves. In fact, it is openly stated by an English authority that hundreds of thousands of pounds of rice, ash, and willow leaves are annually imported as tea, which without the coloring process would be impossible. They report tea as one of the most notoriously adulterated articles of commerce. The temptation to make sweepings and bad tea into a merchantable product with a few cents' worth of green coloring matter is too strong to withstand, and the worthlessness of the trash that often finds its way to the market labeled "New Crop," "Best Quality," "Green Tea," etc., would simply astound the public if revealed, to say nothing of the unhealthfulness of the Prussian blue, plumbago, gypsum, and the other mineral colors that are employed.

Black Tea.

The basket and pan-fried Japan teas, as well as the China teas that may be included under the general heading of "black teas," get their color from the firing or toasting process, but mineral coloring matter is also frequently used to give a certain desired commercial appearance. The firing and the coloring, as in the green tea, largely conceals the identity of the tea, and permits the use of the very cheapest tea, to argue nothing for the deteriorating effect of excessive firing, which must be resorted to when a very cheap product is used and an extreme color desired.

Beech's Tea (Sun-dried).

Concerning sun-dried tea the people of the Pacific Coast have heard but little and know less, although it is extensively used where it is known and understood. We are told that when tea is so poor it cannot be sold at home or safely shipped to the English markets, it is shipped to America; that we will drink anything. That may possibly be true, but the reasons we have not been offered for sun-dried tea. They were good enough to send elsewhere. The sun-dried tea, being uncolored, no coloring matter is used, hence nothing but pure tea leaves can be employed; for unassisted by manipulation or coloring, all attempts at adulteration or the introduction of foreign leaves or material would be bold and glaring. That it is, therefore, sweeter and far more fragrant than the artificially colored green tea and the manipulated basket or pan-fried tea, you hardly need be told. That it is more healthful than the mineral-colored tea, is also apparent. That it is more expensive, is also true; and that is another reason you have never seen it. There is not so much profit in it as there is in the cheap adulterated and colored tea.

About the Cost of Tea.

According to the custom-house reports, the amount of tea received at San Francisco last year (1895) was $5,187,000, and the value $10,750, or a fraction over the per pound. The consumer, of whom the reader was one, paid for that the two all the way from 100 to 21 per pound. In other words, for that $5,187,000 worth of tea the consumer paid between four and five millions of dollars. There are your enormous profits, and there you will probably find the chief reason why most of you never heard of a sun-dried tea. As the sun-dried tea has no mark, they are compelled to be absolutely pure and of better quality than the artificially colored and manipulated tea. Hence the margin on them is smaller, and many dealers don't care about handling them, and you know nothing about them. But it is the object of this article to tell you where you can get them, and what to ask for, and all about them.

"Beech's Tea," guaranteed to be the pure sun-dried leaves, is now offered to the people of the Pacific Coast. It will be a revelation to you. You doubtless never saw any natural leaf. Have your grocer break open a package. It will be found in color to be just between the artificially colored green and the black tea, and the drawn tea presents a clear, brilliant canary color, of delightful fragrance. It is offered to the people at 80c per pound, the same price that many artificially colored teas are sold for. But its guaranteed purity makes it more economical to use; for a less quantity, say about twenty grains, is required per cup. As there are 7,000 grains to a pound, there will be seen to be between three and four hundred cups to the pound, or at the rate of about one fifth of a cent per cup. Its economy is therefore manifest. It is put up in one-pound packages only, in patent airtight and moisture-proof parchment with the trade-mark that is found at the bottom of this article plainly printed on the package. It is sold in this form for two reasons; one is, that the original strength and aroma is preserved; and second, there can be no deception, which would be quite possible if it were sold in bulk, without the name and trade-mark attached.

Caution.

Recollect that the margin of profit is so much smaller on Beech's pure sun-dried tea than on the artificially colored tea that you won't get it if tea by any other name can be put off on you. Ask for

BEECH'S TEA

"Pure As Childhood"

If your grocer does not have it, he will get it for you. Price 60c per pound. The above trade-mark and price is plainly printed on each package.

Perhaps the best way to get it is to go where you know they have it and are willing to sell it. For instance, it can be had without difficulty at

The Voice

Is easily injured—the slightest irritation of the throat or larynx at once affecting its tone, flexibility, or power. All efforts to sing or speak in public, under such conditions, become not only painful but dangerous, and should be strictly avoided until every symptom is removed. To effect a speedy cure no other medicine is equal to

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

The best of remedies, this preparation rapidly soothes irritation, strengthens the delicate organs of speech, and restores the voice to its tone and power. No singer or public speaker should be without it. Lydia Thompson, the famous actress, certifies: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been of very great service to me. It improves and strengthens the voice, and is always effective for the cure of colds and coughs."

"Upon several occasions I have suffered from colds, causing hoarseness and entire loss of voice. In my profession of an auctioneer any affection of the voice or throat is a serious matter, but at each attack, I have been relieved by a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. This remedy, with ordinary care, has worked such a that I have suffered very little inconvenience. I have also used it in my family, with excellent results, in coughs, colds, etc."—Wm. H. Quarterly, Milton, Australia.

"In the spring of 1883, at Portland, Me., I was prostrated by a severe attack of typhoid pneumonia. My physicians exhausted their remedies, and for one year I was not able to even articulate a word. By the advice of Dr. Shaw I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and to my surprise and great joy, in less than one month I could converse easily, in a natural tone of voice. I continued to improve and have become since a well man. I have often recommended the Pectoral, and have never known it to fail."—George B. Lawrence, Valparaiso, Ind.

A SHERIFF'S ESCAPE.—George Slucer, the well-known Lummi Indian, who was arrested on suspicion of killing Moses Yonkin at Fairhaven, Wash., made a desperate attempt to murder Sheriff Delormer, and succeeded in making his escape. The sheriff took Slucer out to the scene of the Yonkin murder, to view the ground and endeavor to draw out an admission of his guilt. The Indian enticed the sheriff to the edge of the bluff overlooking the bay, and seventy-five feet high, to show him the tracks. As the sheriff approached the edge the Indian pushed him over the precipice. The sheriff caught hold of a shrub and saved his life, but the Indian escaped.

ALL STOPS, says the San Francisco Post, point to a revival of the era of railroad construction in the west, which has been suspended for the past three or four years on account of short crops, of strikes, of stringency in the money market, and other causes of minor importance. The splendid grain crops of 1891, so great that the railroads with all their facilities could not handle them, have created a new interest in railroad extension and made the prospect much brighter. That means the Oregon Pacific among other roads.
