

February 22, 1892.

The ten year old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. M. C. Aldrich, died on the 17th of this month. She was a bright and lovely child.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Thompson died of diphtheria at their home in this place on Sunday last.

One of our citizens left for pastures green one day last week.

Candidates for office are popping up quite frequently of late, and Brownville will doubtless come to the convention with her regular quota and want them all nominated, but will probably get left as from the present outlook we could make a good ticket here, and there will be some from the forks as of old.

Gardening is the order of the day. The weather is fine of late, and the birds are singing as if spring were at hand. Who can beat Oregon for a climate. Come this way we frozen folks and help us.

"August Flower"

Mr. Lorenzo F. Sleeper is very well known to the citizens of Appleton, Me., and neighborhood. He says: "Eight years ago I was taken 'sick, and suffered as no one but a dyspeptic can. I then began taking August Flower. At that time I was a great sufferer. Everything I ate distressed me so that I had to throw it up. Then in a few moments that horrid distress would come on and I would have to eat and suffer again. I took a little of your medicine, and felt much better, and after taking a little more August Flower my dyspepsia disappeared, and since that time I have never had the first sign of it. I can eat anything without the least fear of distress. I wish all that are afflicted with that terrible disease or the troubles caused by it would try August Flower, as I am satisfied there is no medicine equal to it."

FACTS ABOUT THE TEA WE DRINK.

But few people know that there is such a thing as unadulterated tea in existence, and fewer have seen it. But there is, and it is of all teas the sweetest, purest, and most fragrant. You see, since how it is that it is not offered for sale and that you know nothing of it. That is answered easily; but it is necessary to present first a few details. The public only knows two general classes, viz., the green and the black teas.

Green Teas. Few people know that the bright bluish-green color of the ordinary teas exposed in the windows is not the natural color. Unpleasant as the fact may be, it is nevertheless artificial. Prussian blue, alum, gypsum, plumbago, and other unwholesome mineral colors being used for this purpose. The effect is twofold. It not only makes the tea bright, shiny, attractive green, but also permits the use of "off-color" and worthless tea, which, once under the green cloak, are readily worked off as a good quality of tea. The horrible coloring practice even admits of the use of foreign substances, and the English government, which looks closer into the genuineness of its staples than ours, has in some of the alleged "best" of tea found red lead, straw, fragments of nutting, rice-husks, and willow leaves. In fact, it is openly stated by an English authority that hundreds of thousands of pounds of this, and willow leaves are annually imported as tea, which without the coloring process would be impossible. They report tea as one of the most notoriously adulterated articles of commerce. The temptation to make swindles and bad tea into a marketable product with a few cents' worth of green coloring matter is too strong to withstand, and the worthlessness of the trash that often finds its way to this market is labeled "New Crop," "Best Quality," "Green Tea," etc., would simply astound the public if revealed, to say nothing of the unwholesomeness of the Prussian blue, plumbago, gypsum, and the other mineral colors that are employed.

Black Teas. The basket and pan-dried Japan teas, as well as the China teas that may be included under the general heading of "black teas," get their color from the firing or roasting process, but mineral coloring is also frequently used to give a desired commercial appearance. The coloring, as in the green teas, conceals the identity of the tea, and the use of the very cheapest and most worthless material for the purpose of coloring, which must be resorted to when a very cheap product is used and an extreme color desired.

Beech's Tea (Sun-dried). Concerning sun-dried teas the people of the Pacific Coast have heard little and know less, although it is extensively used where it is known and understood. We are told that when tea is so poor it cannot be sold at home or safely shipped to the English markets, it is shipped to America; that we will drink anything. That may possibly be one of the reasons we have not been offered sun-dried tea. They were good enough to send elsewhere.

The sun-dried tea being sun-cured, no coloring matter is used, hence nothing but pure tea leaves can be employed; for unadulterated tea is not colored, and the introduction of foreign leaves or material would be to hold and plating. That it is, therefore, sweeter and far more fragrant than the artificially colored green teas and the manipulated basket or pan-dried teas, you hardly need be told. That it is more beautiful than the mineral-colored teas, is also apparent. That it is more expensive, is also true; and that is another reason you have never seen it. There is no such profit in it as there is in the cheap adulterated and colored teas.

About the Cost of Tea. According to the custom-house reports, the amount of tea received at San Francisco last year (1890) was 6,549,137 pounds, and the value $1,000,000, or a fraction over 20c per pound. The consumer of which the reader was one, paid for that tea at the rate of 10c to 15c per pound. In other words, for the $1,000,000 worth of tea the consumer paid between four and five millions of dollars. There are your enormous profits and there you are! And the chief reason why you never heard of a sun-dried tea. As the sun-dried teas have no mark, they are compelled to be absolutely pure and of better quality than the artificially colored and manipulated teas. Hence the margins on them are smaller, and many dealers don't care about handling them, and you know nothing about them. But it is the object of this article to tell you where you can get them, and what to do for them, and all about them.

"Beech's Tea," as alluded to in the pure sun-cured leaves, is now offered to the people of the Pacific Coast. It will be a revelation to you. You doubtless never saw any natural leaf. Have your grocer break open a package. It will be found to be just between the artificially colored green and the black teas, and the green tea presents a clear, brilliant emerald green, of delightful fragrance. It is offered to the people at 20c per pound, the same price that many artificially colored teas sell for. For its guaranteed purity and its pure and wholesome character, its required per cup. As there are 7,000 grains to a pound, there will be seen to be between three and four hundred cups to the pound, or at the rate of about one-fifth of a cent per cup. Its economy is therefore manifest. It is put up in one-pound packages only, in patent air-tight and moisture-proof parchment, with the trade-mark that is found at the bottom of this article plainly printed on the package. It is sold in this form for two reasons: one is, that the original strength and aroma is preserved; and second, there can be no deception, which would be quite possible if it were sold in bulk, without the name and trade-mark attached.

Caution. Recollect that the margin of profit is so much smaller on Beech's pure sun-dried tea than on the artificially colored tea that you won't get it if it is by any other name can be put on you. Ask for

BEECH'S TEA

"Pure As Childhood"

If your grocer does not have it, he will get it for you. Price 20c per pound. The above trade-mark and price is plainly printed on each package.

Perhaps the best way to get it is to go where you know they have it and are willing to sell it. For instance, it can be had without difficulty at

PUBLIC SAFETY DEMANDS. That only honest and reliable medicines should be placed upon the market. It cannot, therefore, be stated too emphatically, nor repeated too often, that all who are in need of a genuine blood-purifier should be sure and ask for Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Your life, or that of some one near and dear to you, may depend on the use of this well-approved remedy to preference to any other preparation of similar name. The process of manufacture is original, skillful, scrupulously clean, and such as to secure the very best medicinal qualities of each ingredient. This medicine is not boiled nor heated, and is, therefore, not a deodorant; but it is a compound extract, obtained by a method exclusively our own, of the best and most powerful alternatives, tonics, and diuretics known to pharmacy.
