

CLEARANCE SALE!

WHAT A MANUFACTURER SAYS.

Representative Stevens, of Massachusetts, a large manufacturer of woolen goods, said in his speech on the wool bill: The advantage of free raw materials to the manufacturer does not stop with the amount of the reduction of duty. It frees the manufacturer from trammels in all directions. Customs decision on rates of duty no longer keep him in suspense for years as to the cost of his materials; high duties no longer drive him to select the poorest wools, which come at lower rates, for the clothing which he makes for the American people, and the high cost of his materials no longer compels him to scan with eagle eye every other item of expense in the cost of production, including the wages of his workmen, to make up for the hundreds of thousands of dollars which he pays into the treasury. Better machinery, larger investments, higher wages to American workmen, and lower prices and better goods to American consumers, all these benefits are within his grasp with freedom to purchase in every market and to make the best use of his foresight and judgment and the skill of his men.

The abolition of the duty on wool does not mean necessarily a smaller demand or lower prices for American wool. It means that both American wool and foreign can be used to the best advantage for the purposes to which each is best adapted, and that they can be mixed in proper proportions in all sorts of fabrics. It means that more wool would be used than is today, because foreign wool, shoddy and other imitations, and more genuine woolen goods would be sold to American buyers. And it may mean in the future perhaps also the opening of new markets to American manufacturers.

Reduced taxes and lower prices always mean increased consumption. That has been the experience of Europe, and must be more emphatically the experience of America, where the measure of the growing tastes and education of the citizen is the measure of his wants. Our republican friends have already found that increasing the taxes from coffee and sugar has given more coffee and more sugar to every American consumer.

I stand here an American manufacturer, but charged also with the high commission which was given the majority of this house by the American people in the elections of 1890, by a clearer mandate than any they ever delivered before, to relieve the people of needless tariff taxation. This bill, in my opinion, does just that with the articles with which it deals. You cannot strike down every shred of protection for one finished American product while you leave it on other such products. You cannot strike down every barrier between the wages of Europe and the wages of America so long as every other industry feels the unhealthy stimulus and the feverish fluctuation in prices due to our present tariff system. If the laborer in the woolen mills goes to purchase supplies for himself or his family, he pays the artificial prices which the higher tariff system enables them to charge. Worse than this, he gets even now such compensating differences in wages as the difference in the prices of certain articles under healthy conditions of competition and the artificial conditions which prevail today. You cannot strike at the wages of the woolen operative by making duties too low while you surround him in every other industry with all the luxuriant morbid growth of an unhealthy system.

The schedule of duties proposed by your committee is a thoroughly systematic system. Strike at one part and you impair the symmetry of the whole. The duty on yarns has been made less than that on fabrics, and the duty on goods with a cotton warp is less than that on goods all wool; the duty on fabrics is less than that on made up articles. We have put the duty on the cheaper blankets at 25 per cent so that any striking increase in the price by the American manufacturer above that will cover the difference between European and American wages, will open the way to foreign blankets and force the American manufacturer to do justice to the American buyer. We have made rates lower than those of the Mills bill upon blankets, upon fabrics with a cotton warp, and upon all kinds of carpeting. The bill of the committee represents, in my opinion, as wise a distribution of duties as could be made. Lower rates than these might cripple American manufacturers, deprive American workmen of their pieces, and defeat many of the objects of progressive tariff reform which is the aim of the majority of this house.

This bill as it stands represents infinite possibilities of good to all American people. It stimulates manufacturers by enabling the poor man to buy more clothes than formerly, the poor woman to buy an all-wool dress where she now buys one of part shoddy or part cotton, the child of poverty to be protected by a double blanket where he is now covered by but a single one, the house of representatives of the Fifty-second congress will live in the hearts of the American people with keener love and higher honors than any house which has ever sat in this Capitol. [Applause on the democratic side.]

The republican leaders in Rhode Island started out to carry the election in that state by hiring all the halls in the cities until after the election. So much indignation was aroused among the people generally that they had to cancel their engagements and give the democrats a chance to be heard.

A gentleman from Salem says there is much dissatisfaction over the nomination of Sherman for clerk by the republican convention and that many a republican voter has already been heard to say that he will be defeated.

The St. Louis Republic (dem) is taking a pessimistic poll of the democrats of the Arkansas legislature. The first returns show Grover Cleveland to be the choice of 28 members. Boies of 6, Carlisle 3, Palmer 3, Flower 2, Cozzani 1, Hill 1.

McKinley's friends put him forward to be the chairman of the republican state convention of Ohio. The Foraker men put up one of their men and knocked the little Na. poleont out.

"We have got the votes in Rhode Island," said Representative Page, to the National Democrat, "but the republicans have got the money. We expect to carry the April elections; we ought to do it, and will do it if republican money does not corrupt the polls. That is our one great danger. We realize fully the importance of the coming election, and so do the republicans. Rhode Island's four votes may determine the Presidential election. Suppose we carry the south, New York, Indiana and New Jersey, and lose Connecticut's six votes. The moral effect of a democratic victory in April would be invaluable. The state is democratic without a doubt. In the last election we only lacked 480 of a majority over all—republicans, prohibitionists and labor candidates. This year's registration shows over 7,000 additional votes. Two thirds of that increase is democratic. We have a good state ticket, the platform is satisfactory and sound, and under the new ballot law every man is free to vote as he pleases. Yet we are apprehensive. The republicans have got the money."

GENE—I enclose sample of Colbert cut to a mass I purchased of you a year and a half ago at fifty cents per yard. If you have more of it send me ten yds. Respectfully, Mrs S P MacConnell.

DEAR MADAM—Referring to your favor of recent date in regard to lace curtain, desire to say we have a new lot of Colbert muslin just like your sample, but the price is now $1.25, owing to the new tariff. We await your further instructions before sending it. Yours Respectfully, MARSHALL FIELD & CO (Per W. C. Curl)

The Oregonian is now fairly roasting Hermon (in your eye) for voting for free silver. The bitter warfare it is making on both Hermon and Mitchell (in your eye) is awfully awful.

The poll of the Democrats of South Carolina, now being made by the Charleston News (dem) stands, at last accounts, as follows: Cleveland, 3,154; Hill, 302; other preferences, 577.

Old People.

J. V. S. is the only Sarsaparilla that old or feeble people should take, as the mineral salts which is in every other Sarsaparilla that we know of, is under certain conditions known to be stimulating. J. V. S. on the contrary is purely vegetable and stimulates digestion and circulates new blood, the very thing for old, delicate or broken down people. It builds them up and prolongs their lives. A case in point:

Mrs. Holden an estimable and elderly lady of 810 Marion St. S. E. was for months declining so rapidly as to seriously alarm her family. It got so bad that she was finally afflicted with fainting spells. She writes: "While in this dangerous condition I saw some of the testimonials concerning J. V. S. and sent for a bottle. That marked the turning point. I regained my lost flesh and strength and have not felt so well in years." That was two years ago and Mrs. Holden is well and hearty to-day, and still taking J. V. S.

If you are old or feeble and want to be built up.
