THOSE SCHOOL BOYS.—The Roseburg Review gives the following particulars of the stabbing affray at Riddles by which Chester Pogue was killed: Young Wright is the son of H Wright, who lives between Riddle and Canyonville, and Pogue was really an orphan, his is there was no following the source of the statistic state of the linear asylum and his mother dead. He has lived in the slynatt family at Riddle for many years, as quiet and inoffensive and bore a good reputation. The boys quarrelled on there way home from school separat-ing at the Cow creek bridge. It is claimed that Wright dared Pogue back and the latter returned and a light en-sued. Wright had opened his knife to out a switch and had put it back into his pocket with the blade open. While they were clinched he used his knife with deadly effect. They separated and Pogue walked some distance away before he knew that he had been injured. Wright was examined before Justice Brown yes-terday, and held on the charge of mur-der. JB Riddle brought the boys to Roseburg and he is now in the county jail. A similar tragedy occurred at Rid-de several years ago between two school bors, when one of the Russell boys stabbed young Quine to deati. THOSE SCHOOL BOYS .- The Roseburg

A CHERKY BOY.—A few days ago a team was taking a lot of eggs to town nom the store of Mr Grace at Clarkes. The load proved too large and two cases of eggs were unloaded at the house of a farmer. Those eggs disappeated over night, and the day following a boy came to Mr Grace's store with a half dozen eggs to sell. They were bought and next day and also the third day a boy came with eggs to sell. But the third day the boy had his eggs in the bucket that walked off from the farmer's house with the eggs. He was collared and confessed that he hal been selling Mr Grace his own eggs and the young theves' parents paid the bill.—Oregon City Courier A CHEERY BOY .-- A few days ago a

"It doesn't do any thing but rain here," a stranger remarked this noon. Of course he prevaricated. It rained very little in January and February, and soon it will begin a five or six months siege of dry weather. Narrow minded men jump off the cars into an Oregon mist, swear it rains all the time, and kick. It rains a good deal in the winter, and in the fall it rains a bountiful, never failing wheat crop That's our style here.
