

WHAT SENATOR VEST SAYS.

Senator George G Vest of Missouri was at the Hoffman House New York. He came from Washington, he said, on private business, and would remain in New York only for a day.

"The state is for the free coinage of silver, and I believe rightly so, but that issue should not and will not, I believe, be made the prominent one in the campaign. The tariff, on which circumstances of the last eight years have made Mr Cleveland the leading man in the party, is the main question, and Cleveland is naturally the candidate for the presidency on that issue, just as Mills was naturally the candidate for the speakership in the House of Representatives.

"Do you think Mr Cleveland can be nominated?" Senator Vest was asked. "From the sentiment of the country as I learn it at Washington, he can," replied Mr Vest. "The serious problem which will confront the Chicago convention is the situation in New York. I cannot say what weight the convention would give to the fact that New York had a delegation at Chicago solidly for Hill and opposed to Mr Cleveland. I have seen it stated that enough votes would be given to Mr Cleveland before New York is reached on the roll-call to secure him the nomination. I have not the figures on that question, but assuming, as seems probable, that the states on the list ahead of New York will cast their votes for the ex-president, it is a question if his nomination would not be considered inevitable without the vote of New York, even if the necessary number was not reached when New York broke for another candidate.

"Can Cleveland carry New York State?" is the great question which will have to be met. We must have this state to elect the president. Some profess to believe that Cleveland can carry it. Some say he cannot. I have not the accurate knowledge of the men and the politics of the state to make a prediction valuable, but the candidate must carry it in order to be elected, and in the history of the party it was never more important to elect a democratic president than now. Any essential change from the iniquitous tariff law which is now on the books cannot be secured without it, and, with a republican president and the possibility of a republican house, the force bill would be revived. If the legislative bodies and chief executive are republican, that measure is sure to come up, and its passage would be the most disastrous piece of legislation which the country has known for years.

"The free coinage of silver, I believe, is a desirable thing, but that alone will not bring the millennium. With the existing laws on other economic questions, a larger volume of currency than we now have would tend to go in the same channel as at present. The free-coinage question should not be given such prominence as to endanger the chances of success on more important questions. Many things may occur to change the situation between now and the hour when the convention meets, just as the situation has changed very essentially within the last thirty days. A month ago Hill's chances seemed to be good for a heavy support in the national convention, while Cleveland did not seem to have the strength his friends had predicted and desired for him. Now the conditions are reversed. Hill seems to be out of it, while Cleveland has been coming rapidly into the consideration."

Senator Vest's attention was called to published statements respecting the strength of other candidates in some states, notably that of Mr Gray in Indiana. He said he believed Indiana was as strongly for Cleveland as Missouri, and it was the general impression that all the states on the list which will be reached on roll call before New York, with the possible exception of Georgia, which was said to have a divided delegation, would be for the ex-president.

"I think no voting will be done. There may be a good deal of speechmaking on the subject. I have made no canvass myself, but some of the senators who have interviewed about all senators on the question have told me that there are not enough votes in the senate to pass a free coinage measure, or secure consideration of one. They say that thirteen democrats and thirty-one republicans will vote against consideration of a free coinage measure, and that would prevent a vote on the issue, for there is never a full senate, and the forty-four who are scheduled against it are half of the entire body. Senator Morgan's resolution will draw out speeches, but that is all I think."

"What impression has Senator Hill made in the senate?" "Practically none, because he has been there so little. He came to Washington with a deal of eclat, having a record of great strength in this state, but I think he has not held his own. He has been away very much, and is hardly on record on any question. He has not fulfilled the expectations and the predictions that were made for him."

"Will any of the tariff measures reported from Mr Springer's committee pass the senate?"

"I don't believe they will. The republicans of the senate will not allow it. They are all stalwarts when a tariff measure comes in sight, whatever may be their views on the question of free coinage."

Senator Vest said he thought the present session of congress would be a short one. There would be little important legislation except the passage of the appropriation bills. Senator Vest said further that he did not approve of the May convention idea for this state, and that if a divided delegation went to Chicago it would present the gravest question to the convention that the body would be called on to consider.

Congressman Dabell, of Pennsylvania, in the course of a tariff debate on the floor of the house the other day, said: "Mr Chairman, I understand that the McKinley bill does raise the price of the poor man's dinner pail about 5-12 of a cent, and my suggestion to him is that, if he has to pay it, he pay it out of the $3 a year he saves on republican free sugar, and he will still be $2.99 7-12 ahead."—Oregonian

All of which shows that free trade in sugar is much better for the consumer than taxed tin, and as the consuming class constitute the great majority of the people, and good policy requires that such laws should be passed as will produce the greatest good for the greatest number, then it would be much better to have freetrade in tin as well as in sugar. And thus does another protection prop fall to the ground.

In their platform adopted yesterday the Massachusetts democrats "heartily endorse" the tariff reform measures of the present house and pledge themselves to "welcome, whenever it can be enacted, a comprehensive bill making a general reduction in the duties imposed by the tariff bill of 1883 and by the yet more oppressive tariff legislation of 1890." And in connection with this they endorsed Mr Cleveland for the democratic nomination. Whether the nominee is Mr Cleveland or a western democrat, the campaign of education will go on in Massachusetts until the state is redeemed from republicanism and ignorance.

Gov Campbell's challenge to the republicans to produce a single workman whose wages had been increased as the result of the McKinley bill meets with no response from Reading, where the announcement is made of a reduction in the wages of puddlers and of the indefinite closing down of two rolling mills.

Pimples.

The old idea of 40 years ago was that facial eruptions were due to a "blood humor," for which they gave poisons. Thus all the old Sarsaparillas contain poisons, a most objectionable and drastic mineral, that instead of decreasing, actually creates more eruptions. You have noticed this when taking other Sarsaparillas than Joy's. It is however now known that the stomach, the blood creating power, is the seat of all vitiating or excreting operations. A stomach clogged by indigestion or constipation, vitiates the blood, result pimples. A clean stomach and beautiful digestion purifies it and they disappear. Thus Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is compounded after the modern idea to regulate the bowels and stimulate the digestion. The effect is immediate and most satisfactory. A short testimonial to contrast the action of the poisons Sarsaparillas and Joy's modern vegetable preparation. Mrs. C. D. Stuart, of 409 Hayes St., S. F., writes: "I have for years had indigestion, I tried a popular Sarsaparilla but it actually caused more pimples to break out on my face. Hearing that Joy's was a later preparation and acted differently, I tried it and the pimples immediately disappeared."
