THE SILVER QUESTION.

The international monetary conference convened at Brussels on Tuesday. The following nations are represented: Austria, Hungary, Belgium, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Netherlands, Portugal, Romania, Russia, Serbia, Spain, Sweden, Norway and Switzerland. The purpose of this conference is to adopt a policy among the nations by which an enlarged use of silver may be secured. It is to be hoped that the conference may be able to agree upon plans by which the product of the silver mines may be utilized as a legal tender money.

Beerhaet, the Belgian prime minister and minister of finance, who opened the proceedings, said in his inaugural address that the conference had been called to discuss one of the gravest and most complex problems modern society ever had to face. He extended, in the name of the Belgian government, a most cordial welcome to the delegates. After referring to the monetary crisis during the past century Beerhaet said it was in the direction of an international understanding that a solution of the monetary question was now sought. This, he added, is in accordance with the law of progress. Numerous such understandings had already been arrived at for the regulation of the common interests of the civilized world in regard to telegraphs, railways, weights and measures, and why should not the same course be followed in the case of money. It was fitting the deliberations of the conference should take place on the soil of a country belonging to Latin union, but it was for the delegates of the United States to put forward the views of their government and explain how it was proposed to carry these views into effect. Beerhaet advised the delegates to enter the discussion without being too greatly impressed by the prospect of making the silver for which appeared to be no employment. Montefiore Levi, as president of the conference, followed. Beerhaet Levi said he accepted the honor of presiding over the deliberations, knowing it was intended for Belgium rather than himself. He referred to the numerous attempts made in the monetary question, mentioning especially the British gold and silver commission of 1886 as distinguished above all other similar bodies by its eminently practical character. The worst feature of the present monetary situation was its instability. He hoped the conference would sink individual interest, and keep in view the higher interests of the great human family.

Hon E Terrell, United States minister to Belgium, replied in a few formal words on behalf of the American delegates. The conference then adjourned until Friday.

The official count of the state vote of Rhode Island shows the following result: Bidwell, 1565; Cleveland, 24,335; Harrison, 27,069; Weaver, 227. The plurality 2734.

Montefiore Levi of Belgium has been elected president of the International Monetary Conference now in session in Brussels.

According to the San Francisco Examiner the Cleveland electors in California will have about 400 plurality over the Harrison electors.
