

Daily Democrat

THE ENTAILED DEFICIT

Speaking of the assumed necessity resting upon the government to borrow money to meet its current obligations—a need which has not yet been acknowledged—the Tribune says: "It is a great pity that the national government should be obliged to raise money in this way so soon after the advent of a democratic administration. But there is nothing astonishing in it."

Nothing that is foreseen, foretold and inevitable is ever astonishing. The treasury deficiency was bequeathed to the democratic administration by its republican predecessor, and there was no escape from it.

It is undeniably a republican legacy, like the money panic which resulted from the Sherman law. The democrats of the last house, who saved at the spigot only to waste at the bung, are partly at fault. But the beginning of the extravagance was in the Billion Dollar Congress. Its continuation and culmination are justly chargeable to the party which had the administration and the senate, and whose president never once interposed his veto for the protection of the treasury from the raiders.

When the democrats turned the government over to the republicans in 1889 the treasury surplus was nearly $100,000,000 the annual surplus revenue the same, and the excess of gold above the reserve was $98,000,000. When the democrats received it back in 1893 the treasury surplus and the revenue surplus were gone and the free gold was less than $1,000,000.

These are facts to be remembered. It is the duty of patriotic members of all parties in congress to unite in devising ways and means to replenish the treasury. But the truth of history requires that the responsibility for the deficiency shall be rightly fixed. —New York World.

STICK TO FACTS

The Astorian, hoping to make political capital, speaking of the vote in the house on the silver bill says:

A majority of Cleveland's supporters in the house have voted against him, and a large majority of his supporters in the senate probably will vote against him, on the very question upon which he has staked the success of his administration and the future of his party.

Now the truth is that 141 democrats voted for the repeal and 77 against it. In view of this fact which is a matter of record it is pertinent to ask what becomes of the Astorian's statement that a majority of democrats in the house voted against repeal. Stick to facts.

Governor Boies, of Iowa, opened the campaign at Grand Center, Saturday. He devoted most of his time to tariff, pensions, prohibition and state institutions. The governor vigorously repelled the charges of the republicans that the democracy was responsible for the present financial crisis, pointing out that for centuries the commercial centers of the globe had been subject to money panics at comparatively regular intervals, the consequences of which have been precisely what we have been witnessing. On the silver question, he said:

"This is a question that ought never to be pampered by partisan politics; it requires for proper adjustment the best thought of the best men of all political parties. The great mass of our people, outside of those directly benefited by exchange, look upon the act of 1873, demonetizing silver, as a colossal, national crime, and are anxious to remedy the wrong in any way it can be done without committing another, and without detriment to the credit of the nation. That a solution of this difficult problem, which will restore to the country the free coinage of silver, will be discovered, I have no doubt; neither do I question that we will be most likely to reach a correct solution, and one that will do justice to all classes and reflect credit on our common country, if we are able to keep it out of the bitter partisan politics of the nation."

One thing may be set down as certain, that the tariff hearings before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives will have some reference to the purchasing class as well as to the producing class. They may bring out some of the conditions, at least, under which manufacturers can flourish without the people being subjected to too burdensome taxation.

If tariff reform by a democratic administration meant business depression for the country no one would welcome it more warmly than republican leaders and republican newspapers.

TO INCREASE OUR TRADE.

Senator Sherman says: "We ought to encourage in every possible way the exportation of our products, although I do not see precisely how it can be done."

Two or three ways of increasing our foreign trade ought to be obvious.

It is an old saying that "those who want friends must show themselves friendly." If we want more trade we must show a disposition to trade on fair terms. No nation in Europe will buy of us if it can get what it wants elsewhere on anything like as favorable terms. This disposition has been created by our hostile tariff laws, which were avowedly framed to keep out foreign products.

It takes two to trade. Commerce between countries is based on mutual advantage in the exchange of commodities. How can we expect to "increase the exportation of our products," except as foreign nations must have food, while we raise high the barriers of our prohibitory tariffs, based on the idea that "commerce is war"—that trade must be like a jug handle, "all on one side."

One other way to increase our exports is to untax the raw materials of our manufacturers, placing them on equal terms with their foreign competitors as to the cost of production. Unshackled commerce and it will take care of itself.

At funerals in the city of Mexico no hearses are used. The street railway company has a monopoly of the funeral business. It runs funeral cars—white for children, black for adults—and mourners follow to the cemetery in a richly-upholstered special car.

Whiskey will take out every kind of fruit stain. A child's dress will look entirely ruined by the dark berry stains on it, but if whiskey is poured on the discolored places before sending it into the wash it will come out as good as new.

"I have lived here in Oregon for the past twenty years, and most of the time have been a very great sufferer from indigestion, rheumatism. I have also had what the doctor called heart disease, with shortness of breath and sharp pains in the left side. I decided to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had finished three bottles I was in better health than I had been for years. I do not have any pain now, sleep well, and to-day no woman of my age

IN GLASS.

That's the way Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets come. And it's a more important point than you think. It keeps them always fresh and reliable, unlike the ordinary pills in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes.

They're put up in a better way, and they act in a better way, than the huge, old-fashioned pills. No gripping, no violence, no reaction afterward that sometimes leaves you worse off than before.

In that way, they cure permanently. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're tiny, sugar-coated granules, a compound of refined and concentrated vegetable extracts—the smallest in size, the easiest to take, and cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.

There's nothing likely to be "just as good."
