Daily Democrat.

HARMONY AFTER ALL.

A Washington correspondent writing the day before the vote in the senate on the repeal bill said:

The protracted debate in the senate, which will come to a close tomorrow, will not leave behind the bitterness in that body that at one time seemed almost certain. Neither will it occasion the serious divisions with regard to other legislation that have been repeatedly predicted. Now that the end is at hand and the excitement is subsiding it is apparent that democrats will remain democrats and republicans republicans throughout the whole life of the present congress.

This is not tantamount to saying that the battle over silver was not an earnest one. No more stubbornly contested fight was ever seen in congress. Both sides have done their best, though there have been times when the cause of repeal seemed to be very badly championed. The silver men had the best of it in point of strategy and parliamentary manoeuvring and responded with more zest to Mr Teller's leadership than the repeal men did to the leadership of Mr Voorhees. But as the lines were drawn closer and closer, and the exigencies of the case became plainer and plainer, grim grit was displayed in both camps, and the contest sustained its interest to the last.

Politicians adjust their differences quite as readily, and as easily as lawyers do, and the leaders of the two great parties in the senate are already busy bringing factions together. Mr Sherman and Mr Aldrich are "making up" to the silver senators from the west, and the most cordial feeling is already restored between Mr Voorhees and Mr Mills on the one hand and those southern senators on the other, with whom they had, in all previous contests about silver, heartily co operated. This re-established good feeling will, it is predicted, rapidly increase, until by the time the great subjects of tariff and election laws are presented to the senate, there will again be a reunited democracy and a reunited republicanism in that body, prepared to adhere to their party tenets and platform promises.

Mr Wolcott, in his speech yesterday declared that the silver senators from the west could not be driven out of the republican party, and the silver senators from the south, while making no public proclamation of their continued devotion to democracy, are as earnestly in favor of tariff reform as ever they were and as firmly resolved as ever to rid the statute books of all objectionable laws relating to federal control of elections.

But while there are no serious party losses to be recorded, there are some material changes to be noted in the personal fortunes of senators growing out of the contest. No man on the democratic side has fared so well as Mr Hill. Everything has leaured to his benefit. His speech in favor of repeal is rated as the best delivered on that side of the question, and his prediction uttered early in the engagement that unconditional repeal would pass is about to be verified. His closure resolution was exceedingly well handled, and his participation in the running debates on that proposition and on the old usages of the senate was characterized by unusual skill and force. He found himself confronting the ablest men in the chamber, but he carried himself with so much confidence and adroitness that the galleries applauded him to the echo, in violation of the rules of the senate. It is conceded here that Mr Hill has an exceptionally good opportunity to become the democratic leader of the senate. Mr Voorhees does not aspire to the place, and Mr Gorman's signal reverses have put him out of the question. Mr Hill has shown dash and pluck and persistency, coupled with strong debating power, and these are the qualities needed for leadership in the new era opening in the senate.

On the republican side the honors of the contest are universally accorded to Mr Teller. The Colorado senator has always been regarded as a strong man in the senate. But as the leader of the minority in this fight his spirit has served to arouse his followers to their best exertions, and first and last the Colorado senator has been the heart and brains of the whole silver contingent. He planned the battle, looked after the details of execution, threw himself into the breach whenever occasion presented itself and fought hard and gamely throughout. He was controlled, of course, by local considerations. Colorado being a silver producing state, his object was to serve the interests of his own people. But this insured him sympathy in the senate, and as he proceeded to develop daily some effective quality of leadership, even the men who were opposing him felt obliged to extend to him the meed of their admiration.

Mr Sherman, however, will still remain the republican leader in the senate. The place is secured to him no less by his ability and experience than by the fact that on the ground of general republican policy, tariff, finance, federal election laws and other things he is his party's best representative in that body.

LEGAL HOLIDAYS.

No business instrument can be executed on either day with the expectation that its validity will be affirmed by the courts.—Evening Telegram.

The Telegram may teach all the plain doctrines it chooses in politics, it may misrepresent and defame democrats without stint, and without protest from the democratic press, but it should not be permitted to mislead the people by saying no business instrument can be executed on either Thanksgiving day this year in this state because under the statute of the state both are legal holidays. Such is not the law. Hence any note, mortgage or deed executed on a legal holiday is as binding on the parties as if executed on any other day.

A wag suggests that the democrats should eat turkey on president Cleveland's Thanksgiving day, the populists on Pennoyer's and the republicans eat crow

What Do You Take.

Medicine for? Because you are sick and want to get well, or because you wish to prevent illness. Then remember that Hood's Sarsaparilla cures all diseases caused by impure blood.

Purely vegetable—HOOD'S PILL—25c.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,
