Several items have gone around about horses being sold for almost nothing at auction sales, in Oregon; but remember this fact: if he has blood he brings hig money regardless of dull times. Even a culf was bought by a Benton county man for $500, when you can get all the culves you want for a few hundred cents.

While other states spent hundreds of thousands of dollars at the World's fair, Oregon only disposed of about $35,000, and yet she obtained more prizes than any other state except two. The fact is a re-markable one, simply speaking for our won-derful resources. A state that can do that will be heard from. The Man About Town predicts that Oregon will show the greatest growth of any of the U. S. during the con-ing five years.

Bill Nye writing from London says baled hay is $45 to $50 a ton. He has been kick-ing himself because he didn't take over a load. Several months ago the Desnochay-mentioned the fact of the prevailing steeple price of hay in England, and if Mr Nye is not enterprising enough to take the lead-ing papers of the country it serves him emi-nently right if he lose a colossal bargain in his travels.
