

BRECKINRIDGE EXPLAINS.

Mr Breckinridge, one of the members of the ways and means committee explains the new tariff bill as follows:

"The revenue difficulty, caused by the recent panic, is temporary only, and it will doubtless be provided for by a temporary expedient. We cannot generalize on this, but taking matters at a more normal state, it may be said that we must provide for $50,000,000, or possibly less, in ways not expressed in the new tariff. This will follow very soon, in time to be incorporated with the present bill. But as this is not expected to be of a character to materially affect manufactures or trade, and as the people were extremely anxious to know what we proposed doing in regard to the tariff, we concluded to make the new bill public as soon as it was finally completed. To a very great extent we have substituted ad valorem for specific duties. This seems indispensable if we are to equalize the tariffs and the burdens of the people. Many of the irregularities which are corrected are astonishing. The administrative tariff laws have found approval far more than was expected, and it is believed that the few changes proposed are in accord with experience and will meet with general support.

"We have struck out from the tariff all those features that distinguished it as a 'combine' and placed what is usually known as 'raw materials,' such as wool, coal, iron ore, wood, and the like, on the free list. A few chemicals are added to the free list, and the cruder forms of manufactures, such as pig iron and similar articles, are greatly reduced from their present high rate of duties. We refuse the extraordinary protection that is now given to transportation; that is, we do not grant rates that will enable an article, especially a crude or bulk article, that is produced in one part of our vast country to overcome the cost of transportation to remote localities, beyond the range of its reasonable or natural market. The present tariff rates make the most of such articles oppressive to both the remote and reasonably nearby localities, while a less rate will relieve both people, and as consumption increases, when extortion is prevented, the trade will be maintained, if, indeed, it be not greatly improved.

"With free raw materials and the tariff stripped of its most odious and oppressive features, we give to consumers and producers alike a larger field for the employment of labor, better returns and a more abundant participation in the rewards and comforts of life."

Mr Breckinridge illustrated by referring to the wool schedule, where, with free raw material, the specific or compulsory duties were taken off. Under the old system, yarns, worth not over 40 cents, were taxed 120 or 135 per cent. Under the new bill they were put down to 35 per cent. He continued:

"On clothes, shawls, knit fabrics, etc., the rate now is from 97 per cent on costly goods to 140 and 142 per cent on cheaper goods. Of course, the rate is much higher on still cheaper goods. We reduce and equalize this by making it 50 per cent. On blankets, hats of wool and flannels for underwear, the present rate is from 77 to 104 per cent, and on other grades still higher and prohibitory. We make them from 25 to 35 per cent. Women's and children's dress goods are now taxed from 84 to 105 per cent; we make them 40 per cent ad valorem. On ready-made clothing the tax now is from 82 per cent to a prohibition of imports. We make it 45 per cent. Carpets we reduce all along the line. In addition to this it is provided that on the woollen schedule, except carpets, there shall come off 1 per cent every year for five years. This will bring all these duties 5 per cent lower in the scale. In other words, what is left at 35 per cent will become 30 per cent, etc. This is left temporarily in order to give our woollen manufacturers time and opportunity to become accustomed to the use of foreign wools."

The alligator is threatened with speedy extermination. He grows slowly, but he grows as long as he lives, and a twelve-footer is said to be about seventy-five years old. Over 2,500,000, according to an estimate from Florida, have been killed in the last dozen years.

THE FORUM'S REDUCTION OF PRICE.

The Forum, which its readers regard as the foremost of our periodicals, reduces its price, beginning with the December number from $5. to $3. a year, from 50c. to 25c. a copy. This is the most noteworthy reduction in periodical literature that has taken place—perhaps that can take place. Magazines of fiction and adventure, the illustrated monthlies, were within everybody's reach even before the recent reduction in the price of some of them. But no periodical of the class of The Forum has ever been sold for 25 cts. It becomes the cheapest by half of all great Reviews in the world, and it remains the largest of all our periodicals of its kind, and its character is in no way changed.

This reduction of price puts The Forum easily within the reach of every reader who cares for it—of every man and woman who desires to keep abreast of the time. The extent to which this reduction will add to popular education on great subjects is incalculable. The ablest articles by the foremost writers are now offered at less than two cents each. The December number, for example, contains the following sixteen articles:—"Are Presidential Appointments for Sale?" William D. Foulke; "Necessity for Immediate Tariff Reduction," A. Augustus Healy; "A Plan for an Automatic, non Political Tariff," Men W. J. Coombs; "Francis Parkman and his Work," Julia H. Ward; "Child Study; the Basis of Exact Education," President G. Stanley Hall; "Israel Among the Nations," W. E. H. Lecky; "The Beginning of Man and the Age of the Race," Dr. D. G. Brinton; "Need not of 'More Money,' but Better Exchange," T. G. Shestman; "How to Deal with a Filibustering Minority," John B. McMaster; "Use of Rich Men in a Republic," Frederic Harrison; "Mr. Goldwin Smith's 'Views on our History,'" Woodrow Wilson; "A Plan to Free our Schools from Politics," Dr. J. M. Rice; "The Most Popular Novels in America," Hamilton W. Mabie; "Lasting Results of the World's Fair," Alice Freeman Palmer; "The Fair's Results to the City of Chicago," Franklin H. Head.—Address: The Forum Publishing Co, New York.

A Medical Firm Gives Away Cash.

J. F. Smith & Co. of No. 255 Greenwich St., New York, the manufacturers of that favorite cathartic known as Smith's Blue Beans, have adopted a novel plan. They ask the individual buyers of Blue Beans to send them a name and address, with an outside wrapper from a bottle of Blue Beans (either size) to their office, and they give $5 for the first wrapper received in each morning's mail, and $1 for the 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th. Every day $10 in cash is thus sent to their correspondents. Ask for SMALL size.
