BO'S HAD GREAT TIME AT SALEM LAST NIGHT

Fifteen Hundred of 'Em Given Handout at the Capital City.

How the big crowd of Albany Elks were treated in their "Bo trip to Salem last night, is best told by the Statesman, as follows:

"Hark, hark, the dogs do bark, The beggars are coming to town, Some in rags, some in tags, And some in velvet gowns."

—Nursery Rhyme.
 Fifteen hundred "hoboes" from Albany, Eugene, McMinnville and other neighboring valley towns invaded Salem last night to attend the annual homecoming and hobo social given by the Salem lodge of Elks. Garbed in the motley costume of the professional "Weary Willies," the itinerants from nearby Elks lodges piled from the special trains in which they had come to the city and swarmed over the business section of Salem.

Bands, banners, bombs, torches, flares of red and blue fire, proclaimed the advent of the visiting lodges, all of whom presented a pitiful sight to the hundreds of spectators who lined the sidewalks. That "hard times" had hit most of the contingent was evident from the ragged condition of their clothes, great rents in their garments, faded stockings, and many of the "weary willies" who had traveled to reach the Cherry city.

Not in years has Salem witnessed so much "poverty" as marched down the streets last night. The police were wholly unable to cope with the situation and therefore called upon a special squad of Salem Elks to help in herding the boisterous vagrants into the Elks building on Liberty street. Here the local lodgemen with the generosity for which they are well known, prepared a "handout" for the hungry "Coxey's Army." To entertain the bunch properly vaudeville talent from Portland and the local playhouses was obtained. Addresses of welcome were made by members of the Salem lodge and the "hoboes" from Albany, Eugene, McMinnville and elsewhere responded, expressing their appreciation for the welcome accorded them. At an early hour this morning the "hoboes" boarded their trains and departed, cheering the hospitality of the Salem Elks.

The Salem Elks several hundred strong met the visitors as they arrived and helped escort them to the lodge hall. Every Elk had donned his oldest clothes in honor of the occasion and many of the costumes were most weird and terrifying. The McMinnville and Eugene delegations arrived first and the Albany bunch shortly after 8 o'clock.

The Albany lodgemen came on a special train over the Southern Pacific. The train was stopped at the freight depot on Commercial street where the other Elks gathered to bid them welcome. Here the local Elks and visitors formed in line of march and paraded the principal business streets.

Roman candles, firecrackers, miniature bombs and other noise making devices almost made the onlookers believe they were witnessing an engagement along the European battle line. The Portland, Eugene & Eastern band of Salem, the Chemawa Indian band, the Albany band, McMinnville band and Eugene band all joined to make the general clamor more spirited.

In order that no Elk might escape the fun, the local lodge fitted up a special jail on an automobile truck. This was in charge of several "constables" who with commendable courage combed the crowds and wherever they found an Elk not in proper hobo garb, they at once seized him and without ceremony hustled him behind the bars.

At a local theatre when Tom Ordman was singing a solo entitled "The Clang of the Forge," ten husky tramps lock-stepped down the aisle to the stage and with an imitation cannon leveled at Ordman's head, ordered him to throw up his hands. Tom slid from the stage chained to his captors amid a din of exploding firecrackers in place of the usual orchestral accompaniment. He was imprisoned along with other unfortunate and taken to the Elk's hall.

Andrew Jackson Shelton, The Scio Tribune, says of A. J. Shelton, who recently died at a hospital in Salem, at the age of 59 years: Andrew Jackson Shelton was born of pioneer parents, who were among the first settlers in Eastern Lincoln county. His home during his boyhood and for several years after he attained manhood, was in Jordan. He married a daughter of the late John Bryant, engaged in merchandizing in Jordan, then in stock dealing, then moved to Eastern Oregon where he resided until a few years ago, when he returned to Scio and Jordan.

A Saving of Dollars

Getting a good start is a big step towards success in anything. Since this business was established 50 years ago there has been one object in mind---the customer. He must be pleased if he is going to come back, and his coming back has built our business. Being pleased means more than going away happy. It means a feeling that is lasting; a feeling derived from good merchandise purchased at a reasonable cost, and possessing style, material, and workmanship that are a guaranty of long life, and prove themselves as time goes on.

are very much in evidence. In Dress Hats the style is a trifle higher crown, good colors are slate, pearl, gray, brown. Straw Hat time is early this year, these warm, sunny days have started them.

Let Us Save You Money on the Goods You Buy This Spring

The price may not be absolutely the lowest you could find, but the quality will be more than enough better. We do not buy the cheapest goods we can find, but we buy the best goods we can find for the least money, and that is what we are offering you.
