SATURDAY NIGHT THOUGHTS

The war this week has been which and the other, just depending upon which side has told the story. Generally a reading of the place from which the dispatch is sent is sufficient to suggest what follows. Nine times out of ten the advantage is on the side of the nation sending the dispatch. Candidly considered it is difficult at the present time to see any advantage gained one way or the other. Sometimes it looks as if the parties in the fight were gradually becoming exhausted. If it shall mean peace, the sooner the better.

In this country Ex-President Roosevelt has again been in the limelight, attracting attention in his celebrated damage suit with Boss Barnes. The case has been interesting because of the manner in which the ex-president has conducted himself, his personality being a little different from any one else in the world, odd, yet forceful. Altogether considerable of a fire-works.

Another saturday in Albany, an event that has become of a good deal of interest and importance, bringing to the city a good many people on business intent, promoting trade, and incidentally proving a good thing socially. This is a part of it not to be neglected. There is none too much fellowship in the world at best. More of this and there will be more confidence and more business.

Putting the figures of one's class on the roof of a college building may be some foolishness, and yet the student who goes through college without something of the character to tell about has a good deal of a vacuum in his life. There are few college graduates who have not been in some kind of an affair of the kind or more so. A school that never has something doing is often considered as lacking what is now called pep, whatever that is. Anyway, according to an old saying a little fun now and then is relished by the wisest men.

Whatever the musical program it is never well to have too many numbers by one performer. No matter how good, people as a rule only want a certain amount by one person. Even Bill Nye used to tire people before the end of his one man performance. Perhaps the public is to blame, but it is a fact that four or five numbers by one person satisfies the average individual, even though it is a star before one.

City News

More Trouble for Patterson—

Ed Patterson, a horse seller, who was recently jailed in this city for excessive intoxication, going from here to Corvallis, has now been heard from at Eugene. The Register says:
"Eddie Patterson, a horse-trader, was arrested by Sheriff Parker yesterday upon a telegraphic warrant from the justice of the peace at Salem, charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses. He was placed in the county jail and Constable E. E. Cooper, of Salem, was expected to arrive last night to take him to that city."

Operated On—

Rev. C. F. Koehler, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who has been suffering with throat trouble of late, was in Albany Monday where he submitted to an operation which is expected to relieve him. He will not preach Sunday, but expects soon to be able to resume his duties as pastor.—Brownsville Times.

Can Only Be P. M.—

Postmaster Mason, at the request of a postal inspector who was in the city Tuesday, has resigned as a member of the school board. The government does not allow a postmaster to be much of anything else during his official term.—Jefferson Review.

Prowling Around—

John Catlin, Albany's noted sleuth, was prowling around in this section Friday. A history of Johnny's life sounds like a dime novel.—Review.

Stayton's New High School—

Stayton is to have a new high school building, a fine structure. The plans for it will be drawn by C. H.
Burggraf, who has probably drawn more school plans than any other architect in the state. In this case a number of Portland architects were in competition.
