AT THE THEATRES.

Charlie Chaplin, the king of funny men is billed at the Globe Theatre tonight and tomorrow in "A Night Out." This is one of Chaplin's new Essanay pieces and is said to be the funniest yet. One cannot help laughing at his ridiculous actions and situations and he has become the most popular funny man before the American motion picture public today. "Twice Rescued," also in two reels, and "When Emily Dies," fill out today's bill. Friday and Saturday the Frank Rich Co. comes to the Globe with a new stock of musical comedies and a bevy of pretty girls. They have just closed a successful run at Roseburg and other Southern Oregon towns.

"The Prayer of a Horse," one of the greatest animal plays ever put on the screen comes to the Hub today and tomorrow. This play comes endorsed by humane societies and is a splendid one for children to see. "The Phantom Warning" and "Fatty's Infatuation" are two other good reels on the bill. The Hub management will present "The Blue Mouse," on the greatest dramatic successes of the past few years, for Friday and Saturday. Maudie Lesing, one of America's greatest comedienne plays the title role.

At the Rolfe Theatre tonight and Thursday the bill is headed by Vivian Rich in a stirring two reel drama "Heart of Fame." Miss Rich is supported by an all star cast and has acted out a play that is gripping in interest from the start. "The Sheriff's Yellow Streak," another two reel feature, and "Willful Ambrose," a rollicking Keystone comedy, fill out the bill. Friday and Saturday comes "A Fool there Was," one of the greatest motion picture plays ever brought to Albany, with Theda Bara, a Parisian favorite, and Edward Jose, the famous leading man with Sarah Bernhardt, in the principal parts.

Cotton Crop Looking Fine.
Dallas, Tex., April 27.—With Europe eating up America's cotton in the form of guncotton for the thousands upon thousands of pounds, farmers through the southwest are planning this year to plant as much, or more, cotton than heretofore. While at the outset of the war, many farmers inclined to feel a "never again" spirit, many are now believing that it was advisable to continue heavily on the staple crop. Diversification of crops, however, manifestly has been boosted by low cotton prices.

Human Levers.
All man made machinery runs with wheels. Yet there is not a single wheel in the human body. And the human body is the most perfect piece of mechanism in the world. It seems strange that man has developed mechanics along all lines but those with which his own body works. Practically every motion we make is performed by the direct operation of levers, and living creatures are the only machines so built. Almost all these human levers are of one kind, that commonly called the third. There are three kinds of levers: (1) that in which the fulcrum is between the power and the weight, or resistance, as in a pair of scissors; (2) that in which the weight or resistance is between the fulcrum and the power, as in an arm; (3) that in which the power is between the fulcrum and the weight, as in a pair of grass clippers. It is true that each of these forms of levers is used in mechanics, but no great machine has ever been built on the purely lever principle.—New York World.

Japan's Holey Pokey Men.
Japanese children are amused by the rice jelly molder, or amezakuya, as American children are by the hokey pokey ice cream itinerant. Beating a drum, he goes up and down city streets with a small box on his bamboo pole or on a small cart, paper flags of various colors decorating his outfit. Ame is a kind of jelly made from rice, of which all Japanese children are extremely fond. The ame seller stops when the children gather round him, and he amuses them by molding all kinds of shapes, from a fish to a bird, which he sticks on a piece of bamboo and sells to his audience for a mere nothing. He can blow up the ame like a glass blower, making a globe "or a large sized" animal or fish, as he wills, and each child chooses the object he most fancies. Each object created is painted with a vegetable coloring in lifelike colors, and with each purchase he gives away a paper flag. He is a picturesque feature at all temple festivals.—Bulletin of Japan Society.

Today's Oddest Story.
Pendleton, Or., Apr. 28.—Known to nearly all of the world's greatest cowboys, "Eck," the famous bucking bull is dead, a victim of too much civilization.
At each annual Pendleton Round-Up a substantial prize was offered to the cowboy who could remain on "Eck's" roof shaped back. Hundreds tried. All failed.

A FOOL THERE WAS

Wife Sues Former Husband.
Mrs. Laura Harris, of 235 Fifth avenue West, today filed suit against T. W. Harris, a Eugene physician, asking the court to declare her the owner of 38 2-3 shares of stock in the Lane County Investment company, which, with its secretary, Emily B. Potter, was made defendant in the suit. She states that the stock was transferred to her, but that T. W. Harris wrongfully acquired possession of it after he had once given it to her. Thirty shares of the stock are said to be worth $3,000.—Guard.
Dr and Mrs. Harris are former Albany people, residing at the present site of the Elks' temple. They are the parents of Judge Harris.

Grand Jury in Session.
The May term of the Grand Jury convened this morning and the examination of witnesses was begun. The examination is being conducted by Assistant District Attorney Willard Marks. Only two cases have been taken so far and no report has been made on them.
Inspected Lebanon Bridge Site.
Assistant State Highway Engineer Holmes was in the city today and this morning he was taken to Lebanon by the county court to inspect the site of the new bridge which will be built at that place. Work on the new structure will begin in a short time.

British Attacks Fail.
Berlin, April 28.—All attempts of the British to recapture the lost ground in Flanders failed, the official statement asserted. Beyond making sweeping claims of the repulse of all British attacks, the statement gave no details of the fighting line from Ypres to the sea.
