HOW LONG?

The present status of the war indicates very plainly that it cannot be told how long it will last. There is nothing at this time to suggest that the allies can bring the German Austrian forces into subjection for a long time, if at all. On the east side the Russians have been pretty well stopped. Notwithstanding the enormous forces at Russia's command and her equipment she has made a very poor showing in the awful combat, and at this writing has practically been defeated. On the west side the result is about an even thing, without much advantage one way or the other. It after ten months of constant fighting there is hardly an advantage one way or the other, what can be expected in the future under the present methods? It would be pleasant to be able to figure out an early settlement of the trouble; but the war clouds do not have a very bright silver lining. It is up to the people of the United States to adjust themselves to the new conditions and profit rather than lose by the conditions. The Democrat, though, believes that events will cause peace eventually as suddenly as the war started.

WHY FARMERS NEED AUTOS.

Farmers are probably buying more automobiles these days than any one else. A writer has figured out that he needs a car more than any one else, and here are the reasons:

"No one class has more real need for a car than does the farmer. To most farmers a car is an investment, to most other men it is a luxury—at least a point must be stretched to figure out how it is really and truly an investment.

"The experience of a business man living some distance from his place of business will be interesting here.

"This car was a five passenger touring car in the $1500 class. It was driven an average of ten miles a day with three passengers.

"This car cost $1500 and at the end of three years sold for $600. The depreciation amounted to more than the first cost of some five-passenger cars. The repairs were made at commercial garages. This item of expense will be reduced to almost nothing by a farmer who cares for his own car. The labor charge at a garage is more than the cost of the repair part itself, rates ranging from 50 cents to $1 an hour. I have a friend whose garage bill for the repair of his car was $14.15. On investigation he found that the 15 cents was for a bolt and the $14 for labor.

"But even at the figures shown his traveling did not cost him as much as it would have cost to travel the same number of miles by buggy or wagon.

"This man travelled an average distance of 10 miles a day. This required about half an hour for each of the three persons in the car. Whereas it would have required at least two hours a day to have made the same trip with a driving team, and three with a work team. Also it costs about 60 cents a day to feed a team of horses. So that by the time you figure in the time involved, and the costs of operation, the balance is in favor of the automobile—even when the cost per mile is as high as it is in this case."

A few fire crackers and a yell make the average 4th.

Mr. Villa is having a hard old time these days keeping in the footlights.

A fellow in an Eastern ex. takes up a couple of columns to lamming it to Billy Sunday, and telling of his shameless expressions; but Billy keeps getting more converts than all his knockers together, his booze harder and makes the world better all the time so far as his part is concerned.
