City News

Was Logan Day--

Yesterday was Logan day at the fair. Fifteen hundred gallons of Loganberry juice was drunk. Judge Logan, of Oakland, founder of the berry made a speech. The juice is now established as one of the best drinks made. As Albany is the center of a great Loganberry raising section of the coast the fact is of vital concern here. It will mean much for the future business of raising the berry.

On Way to Bay--

H. W. Barr, the jeweler, and family, of Salem, were in the city over night on their way to Newport for an outing. They were the guests of W. A. Barrett and family last evening.

Here from Paris--

Mr. and Mrs. C. Berlow, of Paris, Ill., have been in the city. Albany has several residents who were former Paris citizens.

987 Years Old--

Rev. Newell, of San Francisco, has been in the city in the interest of his church. He has with him an Assyrian Bible 987 years old, a curiosity in the line of antiquities.

A New Town.

Seward, Alaska, July 30.--Ninety days ago Anchorage wasn't on the map. Today it is a town of three thousand and growing by leaps and bounds. The boom was caused by the establishment there of the terminus of the new government railroad to be built in Alaska. The townsite was formerly government land, but the government has sold many lots at auction. The average price paid was $300 a lot, or $1600 an acre.

KNOX BUTTE NEWS AND PERSONALS

Knox Butte, July 29.--Harold Townes of Portland was a visitor at the Maria Miller home.

The canning demonstration held at Harmony Grange Hall was well attended. A lady from the O. A. C. was the demonstrator.

Frank Works, Chas. Works, E. L. McKeever, and Clarence Cox, former residents here, were among those whose crops were ruined by the recent hail storm at Loma, Mont. It is understood that McKeever had part of his crop insured.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Marsh and daughters of Albany, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Caldwell, and Ruth went to Stayton Sunday, going in the Marsh auto.

Hay is about all harvested. Most of the farmers have their barns full and have stacked hay for baling. If the weather is favorable, A. Austin's threshing will be in this vicinity the coming week.

The carpenters are progressing rapidly with the Williams residence.

WHAT A DOLLAR WILL DO!

Farm Values SECOND STORY

The Rolling Dollar lay in the same purse with a $50 yellowback. "Speaking of children," said that busy piece of money, "why don't people look ahead a little. They think they are giving their boys and girls a good start in life, when as a matter of fact they are handicapping them heavily.

"You and I know what it means for young people to make a start in the city. We know how many more good chances there are at home—or ought to be. Yet lots of folks, thinking they are saving money, tear down their county town instead of building it up, by buying everything possible from the catalog houses.

"When the children grow up they must stay on the farm or go to the city, for no town can grow and offer opportunities to a young man unless its merchants are patronized. And few boys, seeing how close the sheriff is behind the business men of its own town, will stay there while the distant city attracts them.

"The good people have forced their boys and girls into the fearful grind of the city by their own shortsightedness. The home town goes downhill, while the mail order houses get rich."

"Farm values are always higher if there is a good live town in the county," responded the $50 yellowback. "When the farmer sells out and retires he can get a stiff price because he sells location as well as land. Why, farm land around Centerville here—where folks keep their money working right around in a circle so that it gets back to them—is worth a quarter more than around Mossdale, where the land is just as good. But the Mossdale country has the mail order bug.

"It is human nature to want a good town to come to once in a while, and we are all willing to pay for a live town's advantages. The people in the Mossdale district send all their money to Chicago and the other mail order centers. Consequently their land is worth less money. They haven't figured yet that no territory, drained of its cash constantly by a city which buys nothing from it in return, can offer any inducements to investors and newcomers.

"A good local market is worth money to the owner of farm land, and you can't have a good market if there is no live town.

"Some people think the local furniture dealer, the clothier, the grocer and the hardware man are robbing them because there is but one or two stores of that kind in the town. That is one excuse for mail order buying.

"Here is proof to the contrary: City people are not a bit smarter than country folks, and they fall for the catalog with the pretty pictures just the same. Why, I heard that Omaha sends $250,000 a year to one Eastern house that has a fascinating scheme for selling soap. Now Omaha has a lot of good stores, big ones, and competition is so keen that 'robbery' is impossible. People there have some other excuse for 'buying a pig in a poke' I suppose, and they get trapped the same way."—Copyright, 1914.
