AGGRESSIVENESS.

Dean J. A. Bexell, of the O. A. C. who was recently in Des Moines, Ia. saw an editorial in the Register, which so attracted his favorable attention that he clipped it out and brought it back to Oregon for our people to read. Here are a few selections:

"The assumption that the Pacific coast is built up on climate is a mistaken one. The Pacific coast is built up on enterprise, pure unadulterated American grit and ambition.

"The Pacific coast is the last frontier, and the restless and aspiring have drifted there in this generation, just as in the generation last past they drifted to the Mississippi valley.

"There are all sorts of climate to be found between the Mexican boundary and Vancouver. Nobody could be suited with all of them. And yet such is the persuasive power of thoroughly enthusiastic promotion that those of passive mind are convinced of the surpassing merits of each sort in turn. If the coast line were unbroken to Alaska, as it would be if the Americans for the forties had had vision, we should hear just as much of the wonders of the Alaskan climate.

"It is easy to hear that Portland and Seattle and the other northern coast cities have been brought to a standstill by stagnation in lumber mills, and yet within a few weeks Seattle has contributed $75,000 to entertain the Shriners for a single week while Portland, within the past year, has completed the Columbia highway—a road 100 miles long, running along the Columbia, which Sam Hill, who is mainly responsible for it, declares to be the best roadway in the world. Some of the stone abutments on this roadway are forty feet wide at the base and fifty feet high.

"It is pure enterprise that is putting roads hundreds of miles long through almost impenetrable forests and along precipitous mountain ranges all the way from the Canadian line to Tinian. Mexico has the climate. Why is not Mexico doing south of the line what California is doing north of the line?

"It is an aggressive leadership that dominates the movements of men and of capital, and the greatest mistake anybody can make is to assume that anything but aggressive leadership has made Los Angeles, or San Francisco, or Portland, or Seattle the envy of some of the less aggressive and less progressive cities of the older and wealthier parts of the world."

MISFITS

The average newspaper man has to take his outing by having an inning.

On the run from morning until he catches the breeze along the way, sees the Three Sisters while hunting news; catches a glimpse of old Hood with someone else climbing the peak; observes Mary's Peak from the steel bridge; talks with people who have been to Cascadia; interviews tourists on their way home from the big fair, and imagines he sees the twinkle of the diamond palace; takes a shower bath at the Y. M. C. A. and thinks he's in the breakers; gets a small package of kelp from the Bay by parcel post and smells the ocean in their green flesh, then ends the day on his own porch, amidst the sweet smelling myrtle, cedar and buckeye, and lies down to gentle sleep with the wind blowing through the open windows. Gee! Isn't that an outing worth climbing for?

Keeping cool is said to be half in the mind.

Carranza sounds fierce when uttered between the teeth. It means trouble.

Billy Sunday refers to Rev. Aked as a high-hypocritical preacher.

It took a Minneapolis man to discover that one thing about the movies to condemn is that there are no heroes.

Misfits has often wished this was true of some concerts and shows. There are times when an encore is the proper thing; but the average encore is simply a jingo, without any occasion for it except to compliment some one regardless of merit.

Misfits recently whacked one of R. W. Chambers' stories. Punching Bag of the Minneapolis News gives him another.

After straining the bonds of decency through a long series of stories, Robert W. Chambers has finally broken over and made his latest heroine unmarried, the mother of a child. Roberts would do better work if he kept away from the maternity ward.

How to Judge

Judge tires by the maker. Judge them by known features. Each exclusive Goodyear feature combats a major trouble.

Judge, above all, by records. Not by mere good luck or mis-hap, but by Tiredom's general verdict. In its 18th year the Goodyear tire far outsells any other. It has outlasted for years.

By any measure you can use, Goodyear tires are best. Adopt them. Any dealer will supply you.
