CARS OF CATALOGUES.

Two car loads of catalogues for Sears Roebuck & Co. of Chicago, recently arrived at Roseburg, from which place they were sent out by parcel post, at close zone rates. The company had undoubtedly figured out a saving of a few dollars this way. That means that the company must do a big business in that section of the state to meet this expense alone, besides the freight the actual cost of the catalogues, immense tomes, being several dollars. That a great many people actually make a practice of sending to this firm for their supplies is well known. When they do it they slap their home merchant in the face, as much as if they actually did so physically. These big mail order houses never have bargain sales. They make the same immense profit on all their sales, and the company referred to is said to have one of the largest incomes of the country, surpassed perhaps only by the Ford Co. They get the business by pushing for it. The home merchant should do the same thing. He should everlastingly keep after the business, aggressive from morning until night, and make the mail order system so unpopular it will be a waste of money to send big car loads of catalogues this way. Make it a fight to the last trench.

WHAT CULTURE IS.

In the September Woman's Home Companion Ida M. Tarbell writes an entertaining and sensible article entitled "The Pursuit of Culture" in which she takes up some of the substitutes for culture which women are willing to accept in place of the real thing. Following is Miss Tarbell's definition of real culture: "Culture is a slow process. It comes from long and close contacts. It is the fruit of reflection, of travail of soul and mind. Grappling with something until the very essence of it has been extracted is a first step. Thus the taste of essence is learned and once learned lesser distillations do not satisfy. Then follows a growing power to discriminate, to distinguish nice values, to judge of quality, to answer to beauty, to feel the need, that what you have—though it may be little—may still be the real thing. This is culture. It is not baggage, like diplomas and degrees—it is not things seen and heard, miles traveled or books read. These are the materials for culture; they contribute to it only when they are absorbed by the mind and as really lost in it as water and lime, phosphates and ammonia must be lost in the soil if they are to enrich it and enable it to increase its yield."

MISFITS

Billy Sunday does use pretty strong language when you come to dissect it. For instance he said: "Cleopatra was a flat-nosed wench who sailed up the Nile clothed only in sunshine and climate." No wonder her old friend, Dr. Aked, got mad and called Billy names.

His size up of Pilate, who never did have any friends, was just a little louder than one hears even on the street corners. He said: "Pilate was a lick-spittle, low-down free lunch, hog-pouched, pliable, plastic, ward-heeling, whiskey-soaked graft politician of his day."

Misfits has no use for slang, and, yet in the hands of Billy Sunday it seems to play a part that nothing else can reach, giving him audiences he could reach no other way, and enabling him to do a good that is felt more in a month or two than Dr. Aked can do in a life time.

Carranza is liable to run up against the real thing, when he will appreciate what it is to slip on a banana peel.

What a difference there is. This has been discovered: Formerly if a man owned a horse and buggy he was thought to be in good circumstances; now if he owns an auto it's guess work.

A man must either push his business or it will do the pushing.
