"PROHIBITION" BIG PLAY AT GLOBE THEATRE TONIGHT

The story of Prohibition, at the Globe tonight is as follows:

The father drinks like the proverbial fish. That he lives despite his orgies is a physical feat and inspires no imitation. His friend, a talented lawyer, goes to the gutter. The dawn of a new tomorrow breaks upon him. He comes to the top like a rubber ball. The father has two sons. Both love the same girl. The loser, a despicable character, jealously demoniac, determines to work upon his younger brother's inherited weakness for drink and finally lands him upon the physical and moral rocks.

But love and intelligence triumph in the besotted mind of both father and son and they swear off for good and for all—not just because the preacher tells them to, but because it means health and happiness.

There are several bully walloping fights, one between the diabolically plotting brother and his sister-in-law and the final battle in which the schemer is killed. Pleasantly free is the story from maudlin weepy picture platitudes. There is conflict all the way through—conflict with the spirits within, with the spirits in the bottles and incarnate spirits who are handy with their

EVANGELIST MEIKLEJOHN ON CHRIST AS A HERO

"Christ is the center of the old testament as well as the new," explained Evangelist Meiklejohn at the cotton tabernacle last night. The speaker took for his text Rev. 13:8 and John 1:29 from which he showed that the sacrificial system of the Jews was a type of Christ.

John 1:1-3 was read to show that Jesus was the creator; when man sinned it was He who gave the promise of the Gospel. Gen. 3:15. It was He who gave the sacrificial system and in this sacrificial system is portrayed the great plan of salvation. The sacrifice pointed forward to Christ's sacrifice. The passover was a type of Christ "Our Passover"; the tabernacle system was a type of the true "tabernacle which God pitched and not man"; in this true tabernacle Christ is our high priest. There Christ began his work in the holy place when He ascended to heaven, Heb. 9:24-26, but at the time of the judgment the work is taken up in the most holy places. Thus the work of the priest in the old testament was a type of the work of Christ in the new, and the Jew if saved will be saved through the atoning blood of Christ just as much as we today are. He walked in the shadow of the cross, we in its light. Hence Jesus Christ is the great hero of the Bible.

A large interest was manifested in this rarely discussed or understood subject. A beautiful duet was rendered by Evangelist and Mrs. Dickson set to the tune of "Juanita," and was much appreciated by those who listened.

The subject for tonight is an extremely interesting one as it is said to be perhaps the strongest argument against infidelity that the Bible has. It was announced as "The Death-blow to Infidelity." All those who have friends of a skeptic, atheistic, or infidel turn of mind were urged to bring them to the lecture for tonight. Seats are free.

Tony Austin, chief of police, is again on duty, having completed his harvest work. His run this year was the shortest yet, due to the increased number of harvesters in the field. The county is full of threshers. Good crops have prevailed.

ADVISOR OF KING OF SIAM HAS RESIGNED

Saw the Country Make Transformation From Ancient to Modern Methods.

San Francisco, Sep. 1.—To voluntarily resign the important post of general adviser to the Siamese government which carries with it a salary of approximately $20,000 per annum for the purpose of accepting the professor of international law at Harvard university, is the precedent established by Honorable Jens I. Westengard, who arrived at this port August 23 on the Japanese steamship Shinyou Maru.

That the services of this American citizen have been appreciated by the people of Siam is indicated by the fact that just prior to his departure, his majesty, the king, was pleased to confer upon Phya Kalyan Maitri (Mr. Westengard), the order of the White Elephant first class, the highest honor ever conferred by the Siamese government upon any American or European not of royal blood.

But Jens I. Westengard has not alone turned his back upon the prospect of becoming independently rich in the public service of a foreign state. He has relinquished the only post of its kind in the civilized world and one which not only gave him a commanding influence in the domestic affairs of Siam, but in the world politics of the far East. For 12 years he has acted as general adviser to a nation having nearly 10,000,000 subjects and an area more than twice as large as the New England states. When it is remembered that the same awakening which struck the shackles of ancient tradition from Japan and gave to that nation a dominant position in oriental politics, has to an equal degree taken place in Siam, the importance of the role played by the man who holds the important position of general adviser can well be appreciated.

Mr. Westengard has lived to see modern railways replace the ancient canals, and the telegraph and telephone perform the service which was once performed by more primitive methods. He has witnessed the gradual growth of the army until it now consists of a force of 50,000 well drilled and equipped men. He has been succeeded by Honorable Wolcott H. Pitkin, formerly attorney general for Porto Rico.
