Ladies' Suits and Coats

are now here in goodly numbers. The most approved models are on display. The Fall materials are fine. The colorings are pleasing. A full description cannot be given. You will appreciate them more fully when you visit the suit and coat section on the second floor.

Corsets

The new garments are designed to fit over the new corsets. The lines should be correct to insure good fitting garments whether you buy ready to wear or make the Fall clothes. Our corsetiere will show you the best style corsets and see that they fit correctly.

Millinery

The new hats are certain clever. Cute little shapes that fit snugly, tans that are neat and sensible, larger shapes that are stunning, are all here in big assortments. The offerings are unusual in the millinery department on the second floor.

A REAL STORY THAT READS LIKE A NOVEL

Los Angeles Club Man Made a Sea Trip Running Over With Adventures.

Los Angeles, Sept. 13.—Warren D. Wood, former commodore of the South Coast Yacht Club, and a well known Los Angeles clubman, is back at his luxurious home here today after a series of adventures in the south seas calculated to make Robinson Crusoe jealous. Woods went to Honolulu six months ago on a pleasure trip. While there he received an offer of the third mate's job on the British ship Krestle, and accepted it—for a lark. Then the Jack London stuff began. When far out on the boundless sea, Skipper Tindle of the Krestle began to notice that his "third luff" shaved daily and appeared on deck wearing silk neckties. The hardy skipper objected to it. There were tense scenes and exciting situations, with the use of belaying pins seemingly imminent. Finally Woods saw that somebody would have to be knocked into the sea scuppers, and being an athlete, and hard as the proverbial nails, he decided to quit his job rather than hurt his captain's feeling or anything else. But it is difficult to quit a third mate's job in the middle of the South Pacific. Wood was resourceful. One night the Krestle dropped anchor on a shadowy tropical isle. Wood hopped into a ship's boat and rowed ashore. There he found a colony of cannibals, who ate bananas when there was nothing else handy. He managed to keep out of the frying pan for five weeks, during which the savages fed him like a king, and viewed his increasing weight with delight. The situation was becoming a bit embarrassing when the little Norwegian steamer Thomas arrived. Disguised behind a five week's beard, Wood approached the Swedish captain and asked for passage to Honolulu. He told the captain he had mansions in Los Angeles, and lots of money. The captain elevated his beetling brows, but lowered them again, growled menacingly, and finally consented to let the society man work his way to Sydney, Australia. At Sydney, Wood told himself he would cable home for a money bag that would astonish the natives. But he did not. He was unable to identify himself to the satisfaction of the cable company, which wanted cash for the message in advance. The American consul wouldn't risk the amount demanded. Two weeks later Wood—overalls, beard and all, asked for a job on the liner Ventura. He got one—peeling potatoes. But he got his revenge. He obtained money in Honolulu, and when the Ventura came through on its next voyage to California, he appropriated the best suite and sat at the captain's right hand all the way to San Francisco.

Prof. David Torbet does the duck problem easily.

(Editor Democrat).—In your paper of Friday, Sept. 10, I saw an article with the heading "One for Prof. Torbet."

Two boys went to market with 60 ducks. The larger boy took 30 of the largest ducks and sold them two for $1. The smaller boy took the remaining ducks and sold them three for $1. They received for their ducks, $25. When they got home they told their father they had sold their ducks at the rate of five for $2 and gave him $24. The boys made $1. How?

The apparent inconsistency is to be explained. The easiest way to make the problem clear is to have ten persons buy five ducks each and one party buy the last ten ducks. To save time and space, let the buyers have names A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, K, and M. Mr. A takes 2 good ducks and 3 cheap ones and pays one boy $1, and his brother $1. Hence A got five ducks and paid two dollars. B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, and K all do as A did. So far the ducks have sold at $2 for 5 ducks. But behold! The boy who sold three for a dollar to these ten purchasers has sold out. He has not one quacker left, and his brother has ten left, and sells them to Mr. M. at 50 cents each. This last sale spoils the average, and the total sales are not 5 ducks for $2, and the boys fooled daddy and kept a shrewdly made dollar.
