Beginning yesterday the Veal Chair factory started running on a ten hour shift, and will continue on that schedule for some time. The factory was closed down for repairs for a short time and reopened two weeks ago, running eight hours up to Saturday night. The increased time is appreciated by the employees. Business is getting better and the orders are coming in in increased volume, which has necessitated the additional two hours a day labor.

No War on Front Page—
The Oregonian appeared this morning with the war news all on the inside pages. That looks good perhaps a sign of returning sanity of the world. The big heads were West-States Conference Today, Kipling Sees Hill Country at Front, Miners Hobnob with John D. Jr., and Stephansson Finds New Land in North Made 677 Sales—

A very busy place yesterday was the store of Fred Dawson. It was the opening day of school, and school children were after new books like a hungry man after a dinner. During the day 677 sales were made, which meant that eight or nine hundred people were in the store, as parents often accompanied their children, sometimes two or three of them.

Salem's Tournament—
Plans for the tennis tournament are progressing satisfactorily and everything now points to a large attendance to determine the championship of the Willamette valley when it comes to tennis playing. Word was received this morning from A. D. Wakeman, of Portland, one of the ranking players of the state, that he would be here with several friends. The Albany players have written that they will be here and letters of inquiry from other points indicate a large attendance from the tennis clubs in all parts of the valley. As a unique feature of the tournament, a dance will be given on Saturday, September 25, on the asphalt courts.—Salem Statesman.

50 LB. HAIL STONES TO COME SAID EVANGELIST

"One of these days the people of this earth will go forward in their natural pursuits, some right with God, but the majority on the wrong side, and mercy's door will forever close, and salvation for sin will be no more. Then will the records of everyone stand for eternity as they are at that time, nothing in heaven or in earth can change them and if we are hidden with Christ in God happy will be the day at that timigur sethiskevbgkq dly, but if we are out of the ark of safety, sad will be the day for us," said Evangelist Dickson last night in his discourse on the "Seven Last Plagues," at the cotton tabernacle.

The Evangelist began by reading the most terrible warning of all the Bible found in Rev. 14-12, where the wrath of God is promised upon the people of earth who worship the beast and his image and his mark in preference to the worship of their Creator and Savior. This wrath of God which is said to be poured out without mixture into the cup of His indignation was the pouring out of the seven last plagues from Rev. 15:1 and chap. 16. The speaker described from the Bible the plagues as they will be given, a most vivid one and the evangelist said that these plagues will fall in the very near future, before Christ comes the second time. It was pointed out that these plagues would be the only announcement of the close of human probation and that when the first plague falls the door of mercy has forever closed, and according to Amos 8:11, 12, men will then run to and from hunting for a word of hope but will not be able to find anyone with that word, a literal famine for the word of God.

The speaker said that when Turkey finally falls because of the drying up process spoken of under the sixth plague (Rev. 16:12), that five of the plagues have already fallen and according to Rev. 18:8 all seven of the plagues cover only one year's time. Among other of the plagues spoken of it was said that the sea and rivers and all the fountains will be turned to blood and men will either drink blood like the blood of dead men or will famish for thirst; that the sun will scorch men with fire and burn up everything which grows in the field; that finally under the seventh plague a great earthquake will take place which will move the islands out of their places, and under this same one hailstones will fall weighing over 50 pounds each. Only those will pass through these plagues unhurt by them who are keeping the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus and who are right before God. They will be protected by God and will not be touched by them although 1000 shall fall at their right side and 10,000 at their left side according to Ps. 91:2-10. Now is the time to make our peace with God and obey his word. Subject tonight is "Church Fairs and Bazaars—Are They Biblical?"

A BIG CROWD ENJOYED THE FINE GLOBE PROGRAM

Nothing better has ever been given in vaudeville than the Pantages program at the Globe last night. It was high class, very entertaining, with an element of skill not often equalled. The Rondas are wonders. Very versatile, they displayed talent in music, grace in dancing and skill in their bicycle tricks, the best ever seen here, clean and wholesome stunts. Rev. Frank W. Gorman met the expectations of all. He has a very sweet, splendidly cultivated tenor voice, that reaches out into the hearts of his audience. The encores were warm ones. The success of Rev. Gorman as a singer is unquestioned. Albert J. Gillette was again heard in a couple of baritone solos, and a fine lot of pictures were shown and greatly appreciated. The whole made up a two hour program that met with universal favor. It will be given again tonight, deserving another crowded house.

Now is the opportunity to buy your fall needs at money saving prices. Suits, raincoats, mackinaws, sweaters, hats, shirts, underwear. In fact everything in men's wear at prices that merit your investigation. Call and see for yourself. Stein & Newman. s21-22
