

There will be some extraordinarily good values in

Millinery for Dollar Day

Most of the hats will be included. Not all to be sold at one dollar each. Some will be reduced one dollar, others will be reduced a great deal more, but listen—All hats will be this season's new styles.

You can buy economically and not sacrifice style and beauty.

Miss Hamilton has just returned from Portland, where she purchased a great many hats for the dollar day event. The hats have just arrived by express, 50 of this season's newest styles. Beautiful trimming, splendid color harmony and exclusive designs characterize this lot of hats that will be on sale Thursday, this week. Regularly they would sell for $5.00 to $9.00 each. For dollar day only, you may take your choice of any of the fifty hats for $3.98.

Here are some dollar day specials out of the ordinary:

All hats that sell regularly $2.00 to $8.00, dollar day, only, $1 off.

All hats that sell regularly $8.00 to $12.00, dollar day only $2 off.

You can save one or two dollars, and get the latest and best style hat by purchasing here tomorrow, Thursday.

Wonderful values for $1. There will be an assortment of trimmed hats, all this season's on sale dollar day, price each $1.

Silk Velvet shapes, some extra special values on dollar day for $1.

Fancy Feather. We will have wonderful values Thursday for $1.

MAXIM'S MACHINE GUN.

A Terrible Engine of Death Which Works Automatically.

Early in life Hiram Maxim showed himself a marvelous genius as an inventor. An incident of his boyhood, in which the recoil of a rifle attracted his attention to an apparent loss of power, led him in 1881-2 to utilize the force of the recoil to good account in a gun which loads itself automatically and fires at the rate of 750 shots a minute by the power of the previously wasted force.

The Maxim machine gun is an engine of terrible destruction. This gun has only a single barrel, which, when the shot is fired, recoils the distance of three-quarters of an inch on the other parts of the gun. This recoil sets moving the machinery which automatically keeps up a continuous fire at the extraordinary rate of twelve rounds a second.

Each recoil of the barrel has therefore to perform the necessary functions of extracting and ejecting the empty cartridge, of bringing up the next full one and placing it in its proper position in the barrel, of cocking the hammer and pulling the trigger.

As long as the firing continues these functions are repeated round after round in rapid succession. The barrel is provided with a water jacket to prevent excessive heating.—Philadelphia Press.

GOING ROUND THE WORLD.

The Gain or Loss of One Whole Day in Making the Trip.

In sailing around the world eastward the days are each a little less than twenty-four hours, according to the speed of the ship, as the sun is met a little earlier every morning. These little differences added together will amount to twenty-four hours. This gives the sailors an extra day—not in imagination, but as an actual fact. They will have done an extra day's work, eaten an extra day's ration of food and enjoyed an extra night's sleep.

On the other hand, in sailing westward the sun is overtaken a little each day, and so each day is rather longer than twenty-four hours, and clocks and watches are found to be too fast. This also will amount in sailing around the world to the point of departure to one whole day by which the reckoning has fallen in arrears. The eastern bound ship, then, has gained a day, and the western bound ship has lost one.

This strange fact, clearly worked out, leads to the apparent paradox that the first named ship has a gain of two whole days over the latter. If we suppose them to have departed from port and returned together.—Westminster Gazette.

BRITISH ARMY SWORDS.

Each Branch of the Service Has Its Own Type of Weapon.

Swords in the British army vary to a very great extent, and practically every branch of the service has its own type of weapon. The difference is not so much in the shape of the blade as in that of the hilt.

The sword used by the infantry has a large ornamental guard, bearing the royal cipher and crown. There is a slot at the top of the guard for the sword knot, really a leather loop ending in a knot to prevent the loss of the sword. The infantry sword is perfectly straight and is sharp on one edge only.

Rifle regiments have a special sword of their own with the rifle badge let into the openwork guard. Very much the same sort of sword, but with a still more open guard, consisting of three curved bars, is used by the royal artillery and army service corps. The Royal engineers have a gilt hilt on their swords, a distinction they prize.

The claymore of the Highland regiments has a big basket hilt lined with red cloth and blue ribbons. The officers of some Scottish regiments carry a plain cross hilted sword without a guard.

Until a few years ago the cavalry were armed with sabers. Nowadays, however, they carry swords of a straight rapier pattern. The guard is a large affair, completely shielding the hand.—New York Times.

THE FRENCH ACADEMY.

Career of the Organization of the "Forty Immortals."

The Institute of France had its inception in 1570, when there was founded in Paris by the French poet, Antoine de Baif, a literary and musical society, known as the Academy of the Valois. Charles IX. granted it letters patent on Nov. 20, 1570, as "The Academy of Poetry and Music." It had, however, no stability. Attacked upon every occasion and criticized by its opponents, its members ceased to meet after 1584. Almost half a century passed before a revival took place.

For some time since the year 1629 a small circle of enthusiastic students was wont to meet at each other's home for the study of French language and literature. From year to year its membership increased, and in 1634 Cardinal Richelieu proposed to the society to have their private status changed into a public institution, with many rights and privileges. Upon agreement by the society it was henceforth known as "The French Academy," with a charter from Louis XIII. of January, 1635. It consisted then of forty members—the "forty immortals"—and at no time and under no pressure whatsoever has this number been increased.—London Standard.

Lost and Found.

It is a world of strange happenings. On the Alaska steamer from Seattle was a young lady who bitterly lamented to a friend aboard the loss of a pin. It was an Elk emblem, gold and jeweled, a present from her brother. She had lost it on the street in Seattle just before her departure. She related the circumstances in the presence of another passenger to whom she had just been introduced by her friend. "This fellow passenger seemed interested and finally inquired, 'Did you really lose an Elk pin and did it have your initials engraved on the back?'" "Indeed I did," replied the young lady. "How did you know about the initials?" The passenger rejoined, "Well, I found it!" He had picked up the pin on the street in Seattle just before the steamer had sailed.—Leslie's.

Growing Truth.

An argument is usually a tug-of-war, and a tug-of-war does not bring people together, yet we are often deceived into thinking that we can bring the other man over to our side by arguing with him. Even when an argument does convince it is not usually the best way of convincing. It is so much better to suggest to people than to argue with them. If you have convinced a person he is trying to remember what you have said. But if you drop a seed in his mind it will quietly work in him. Growing truth is more effective than driven truth.

Wily Elephants.

An elephant that is going to make trouble turns his back on his intended victim and begins to swing his great body from side to side. Then in a flash he wheels, catches the offender with his trunk and hurls him perhaps twenty feet away, following swiftly to crush the life from his body with his mighty knees.

Curious Shoes.

In India the lowest classes wear as shoes a flat block with a large knob, which slips between the first and second toes. They are so skilled in wearing these that they are able to keep them on and walk or run with great speed.

About Dry Goods Mainly.

"Before we were married, Tom, you used to drink in every word I said."
"Yes, but your conversation has become so dry now that I can't drink it in."—Boston Traveler.

His Occupation.

"Johnny, is your father an optimist or a pessimist?"
"He ain't neither one. He's a chiropodist."—New York American.

As Bill Nye Saw It.

Bill Nye described a five shot Colt's revolver as "Professor Colt's five volume treatise on the ventilation of the human system."

U. OF O. HAS FINE CORRESPONDENCE COURSE

Thirty-seven hundred school teachers in Oregon have taken the U. of O. correspondence course, under Dr. Morton, recently of the University of Wisconsin, and 2750 have received certificates.

Correspondence students who take this course will not only learn how to handle a set of books for a business firm but will also get the reasons underlying the various details. The following are some of the special subjects covered in the course: corporation accounting, constructing forms and designing systems for various businesses, partnerships accounts, real estate and insurance accounts, and mergers, consolidation and holding companies.

One hundred seventy-five teachers in Linn county have received outlines for their prescribed reading circle work, and 134 teachers have been sent their certificates by the extension division of the university, which conducts the reading circle work for the state superintendent's office. The state school law now requires study of one book on a pedagogical subject each year and the taking of an informal examination on the book. The State University took over the work in some counties a year ago, and now conducts it in 33 counties.

PERSONAL FLAGS.

Special Emblems For the President and Other Officials.

Until 1881 the president of the United States had no personal flag, his presence on board an American naval vessel being indicated by hoisting the national emblem, at the head of the mainmast, and the garrison flag, reserved for times of special ceremony, was displayed on the staff at army posts whenever he visited them.

The need of a special flag for the president was frequently felt, especially when visiting royalty was entertained in this country. In August, 1882, it was directed by the secretary of the navy that "the flag of the president of the United States shall consist of a blue ground, with the arms of the United States in the center. The flag shall be hoisted at the mainmast of the vessel of war while the president is on board and shall be carried in the bow of his boat."

For years after this the national flag was used for indicating the presence of the vice president or of an ex-president, but this use was more or less confusing, and, besides, it was argued, the stars and stripes properly stand for the nation rather than any individual. For this reason a special flag for the vice president was adopted.

This flag is the same in design as the president's naval blue flag, except that the national coat of arms is emblazoned on a white field on it. Cabinet officers and the assistant secretaries of some of the executive departments also have distinctive flags.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Couldn't Forget It.

"Saturday night some miscreant lodged off a whole cord of my wood, and somehow I can't forget about it," declared Silas.

"Have you tried to forget it?" inquired his friend.

"Yes. Sunday morning I went to church, hoping I could get it off my mind, and before I had been there five minutes the choir started in singing 'The Last Chord,' so I got out."—Judge.

Explanation.

"Willie, did you tie that tin can to the dog's tail?"

"Yes, sir," replied the small boy. "I'm trying to do a kind act every day. That dog chases every rabbit he sees. I tied the can to him so that it will make a noise and warn the rabbit."—Washington Star.
