Harriman and Bride—
Passing through Albany yesterday afternoon in a quiet way, without any display, was one of the distinguished young financiers of the country, W. H. Harriman, son of the late E. H. Harriman. He was on his bridal trip, and was travelling like other people, on a ticket he paid for like other people, in order to avoid publicity, and he evidently had done so, for it was not discovered in Portland; but was at the depot in Eugene, while viewing the park.

SPEED OF PROJECTILES.

How the Velocity of Cannon Balls and Bullets is Measured.

How fast does a bullet travel? The highest velocity ever given to a cannon ball is 1,620 feet per second. This is equal to a mile in little more than three seconds, or nearly twenty miles a minute.

A rifle bullet does not travel so fast as a cannon ball, the average rate being 1,275 feet per second. This matter of speed is tested in a very interesting way.

A long wooden shed is used, in which a distance of exactly 100 feet has been carefully marked off. At each end of this space is a stand something like a target with a large circular opening where the bullet should be. Across each opening is stretched a small electric wire, connected with a delicate instrument in another room.

The rifle from which the firing is done is so aimed that the bullet which flies from it cuts both wires. Obviously the difference in time between the cutting of the two wires marks the speed of the bullet through that 100 feet.

When the first wire is cut an electric current is broken and a rod falls, moving a pointer on a slide in its descent. The breaking of the second wire acts in the same manner on another set of rods, slides and pointers.

The difference in the marks made by the pointers on the slides makes it possible to estimate the difference in their time of falling, and from these calculations accurate figures as to speed are obtained.—London Answers.

SEEKING HAPPINESS.

Little Things That Make Living a Joy Are Not Always Appreciated.

We are told that happiness comes by pieces and that it is these small bits linked together that make our lives worth while. Some of us are not content to take our happiness by degrees or at intervals. We want it all the time in big pieces, and if we cannot have it that way we think that we are deprived of our natural rights and look upon ourselves as injured beings.

It is a rather singular expression of human nature how happiness affects the individual. With some of us it makes us friendlier toward others and anxious that they should experience like joys; with others it makes us too satisfied with ourselves to think very much of our neighbors.

Perhaps those of us who know what the joy of living means have experienced both of these attitudes at different periods of our lives and are in position, therefore, to appreciate a varying viewpoint, but even so it is only after we lose something of that joy of living and have found out for ourselves that there are shadows which no amount of sunlight can dispense that we can readily appreciate the blessing of whatever happiness may find its way into our lives.

The little things that count so much in our intercourse with each other are not always regarded as highly as they should be, and for this reason we pass by much that would give us joy if we only knew how and where to find it.—Charleston News and Courier.

Gardens in the Ice.

A glacier when it dislodges itself and sails away over the Arctic ocean never travels alone. In the wake of every large one floats a line of smaller companions. The Eskimos call this phenomenon "the duck and ducklings," and any one who has watched the progress of the wild duck followed by her brood will appreciate the aptitude of the name. Strange as it may seem, plants grow and blossom upon these great ice mountains. When a glacier is at rest moss attaches itself to it, protecting the ice beneath. Just as seaweed does. After a time the moss decays and forms a soil, in which the seeds of buttercups and dandelions, brought by the wind, take root and flourish.

Professional Pawnbrokers.

In many of the mean streets of London there are professional pawnbrokers, well known to the pawnbrokers who for small payments take clothes and household goods to pawn for their neighbors. It is stated that the function of the professional pawnbroker is twofold. The woman who pawns through a recognized intermediary gets a larger loan than she would if she did the business herself. For the pawnbroker the professional pawnbroker guarantees the good faith of the owner and will be able to exercise pressure in case of default.—London Express.

It Was a Fine Cod.

The artist William M. Chase once hired a fish, painted a picture of it in two hours and afterward sold it to the Corcoran Art gallery at Washington for $2,000. Mr. Chase afterward informed the fish dealer who had rented him the fish of the price he had received for the picture. "Well," commented the fishmonger, "it was a fine cod."—Philadelphia Record.

The Maid's Reply.

As William bent over her fair face he whispered:

"Darling, if I should ask you in French if I might kiss you what would you answer?"

She, relying on her scanty knowledge of the French language, exclaimed, "Billet doux?"—Exchange.

A Continued Story.

"What did your wife say when you stayed out so late last night?"

"I don't know. She hasn't finished telling it all to me yet."—Detroit Free Press.

The coward only threatens when he is safe.—Goethe.

Big Mint Farm.
Lebanon E. A. W. J. Turnidge, the Crabtree merchant and mint grower, has purchased the Hugh Fisher farm of 668 acres in the southwest corner of Marion county, on the Willamette river, and will turn it into the largest mint farm in the West. Only a few acres are now cleared, but Mr. Turnidge will soon put a large force of men at work clearing up the land, and expects to clear 200 acres by the first of April, and will plant the entire tract to mint as fast as possible. Mr. Turnidge is used to doing things in a big way, and will doubtless make a success of his new venture.

Oregon's Smallest Teacher—

Linn county has the smallest school teacher in Oregon. His name is Guy Frim. He is four feet 6 inches tall, weighs 80 pounds and is 20 years old. Lane county, though, has captured him, and he will teach in dist. 157 in Western Lane.
