BRYANT'S POETIC CAREER.

Two Facts About His Greatest Work, "Thanatopsis."

Bryant was nearly twenty-three years old when "Thanatopsis" was first printed in the North American Review. So much has been said about the astounding precocity of this poet and so many errors have accumulated around the publication of his masterpiece that it may be well to state the facts.

We know just two facts about this work. First, it was published when Bryant was almost twenty-three—not young for a poetic genius; second, that in its original published form in the North American Review it is not a remarkable poem.

It was in the 1821 edition of Bryant's poems, when the author was twenty-four or twenty-seven, that the work first appeared in its universally known form. Only a few minor changes were made after that date. This disposes of the generally accepted statement that "Thanatopsis" is a juvenile masterpiece.

Bryant was, however, a precocious poet, although his precocity is not displayed in his greatest work. One of the most extraordinary facts about his poetical career is that he actually published verse during the administration of Thomas Jefferson and during the administration of Rutherford B. Hayes. So long a period and so slender an output speak well for his fustidious taste.—North American Review.

Will Be Back Thursday—

HE WAS STRONG.

In his Christmas sermon to boys and girls, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson of New York, says:

"According to the Gospel Jesus was a wonderful man, and the most wonderful thing about him was his strength. It was his power which caused his fellow men to stare and wonder. He was so strong that he drew great crowds to his as though he were a magnet. He did things which no one else could do. Even his words had something in them not to be found in the words of any other teacher. They drove men to do things they had never done before. Even the glance of his eyes was wonderful. One night when some men came to arrest him he simply turned his eyes upon them, and they were so frightened they fell backward to the ground. Because Jesus was gentle and tender we must not imagine he was soft."

True Lighting Economy Demands Good Electric Lamps

Electric lighting bills are always higher in the Fall and Winter than during the Spring and Summer months.
Everyone knows why—they realize that the hours of darkness increase greatly as winter approaches—understand how the short, cloudy days make a great deal of artificial lighting necessary in home, store and factory.
The greatest help toward keeping lighting bills where they ought to be consists of using Mazda lamps.
Most people interested in getting the best illumination at smallest expense already use Mazda lamps.
Try them out if you have not already done so.
