PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The president's address to congress today is one worthy of consideration. The opening paragraphs are of a striking character. He says:

Since I last had the privilege of addressing you on the state of the Union the war of nations on the other side of the sea, which had then only begun to disclose its portentous proportions, has extended its threatening and sinister scope until it has swept within its flame some portion of every quarter of the globe, not excepting our own hemisphere, has altered the whole face of international affairs and now presents a prospect of reorganization and reconstruction such as statesmen and people have never been called upon to attempt before.

We have stood apart, studiously neutral. It was our manifest duty to do so. Not only did we have no part or interest in the policies which seem to have brought the conflict on; it was necessary, if a universal catastrophe was to be avoided, that a limit should be set to the sweep of destructive war and that some part of the great family of nations should keep the processes of peace alive, if only to prevent collective economic ruin and the breakdown throughout the world of the industries by which its populations are fed and sustained. It was manifestly the duty of the self-governed nations of this hemisphere to resist, if possible the balance of economic loss and confusion in the other, if they could do nothing more. In the day of readjustment and recuperation we earnestly hope and believe that they can be of infinite service.

In this neutrality, to which they were bidden not only by their separate life and their habitual detachment from the politics of Europe but also by a clear perception of international duty, the states of America have become conscious of a new and more vital community of interest and moral partnership in affairs, more clearly conscious of the many common sympathies and interests and duties which bid them stand together.

Then he deals very comprehensively with the Mexican situation. It is Pan-Americanism, with none of the spirit of empire in it, the effectual embodiment of the spirit of law and independence and liberty and mutual service.

Great democracies are not belligerent. Here is his preparedness proposition: But war has never been a mere matter of men and guns. It is a thing of disciplined might. If our citizens are ever to fight effectively upon a sudden summons, they must know how modern fighting is done, and what to do when the summons comes to render themselves immediately available and immediately effective.

tively necessary, therefore, that we should promptly devise means for doing what we have not yet done; that we should give intelligent federal aid and stimulation to industrial and vocational education, as we have long done in the large field of agricultural industry; that, at the same time that we safeguard and conserve the natural resources of the country, we should them at the disposal of those who will use them promptly and intelligently as was sought to be done in the admirable bills submitted to the last congress from its committees on the public lands, bills which I earnestly commend in principle to your consideration; that we should put into operation some provision for rural credits which will add to the extensive borrowing facilities already afforded the farmer by the Reserve bank act adequate instrumentalities by which long credits may be obtained on land mortgages; and that we should study more carefully than we have hitherto been studying the right adaptation of our economic arrangements to changing conditions.

The importance of the transportation problem is suggested, with a commission of inquiry.

Above all he calls for national efficiency and security, serving the nation in a spirit of genius, not partisans; but heralds and prophets of a new age.

MISFITS

A second Street man furnishes the following: Our troubles help our souls to grow. They're sent with that design. I wish that I could see my soul—but it's growing fine.

Senator Weeks is a candidate for president; but the fact that he is a stockbroker, it is said, will kill him.

To run for president a man must be in some honest business, like politics for instance.

It takes $20,000 to educate a boy at West Point, and $12,000 at Annapolis. Uncle Sam pays the bills. An effort is being made to get some more students at $20,000 per.

Three kinds of lives, said a minister some all surface, some twenty inches down and some reach down to the rocks.

Fortunately it is decreed that we shall not judge our fellow man, so which strata one is on will never be decided here.

Some of the deepest lives never get on the first page of the newspapers.

The well balanced boat sails the mooriest.

Oregon is pretty well twisted up in a bunch of flax. The $50,000 spent suggests the manner in which the state has run its business.

Was Great— In moving picture acting it is doubtful if anything better has been seen than that in the Two Orphans at the Rolfe Saturday night, witnessed by two packed houses. Miss Gene Southern as Louise was the star of the play.

ONE ON BRUCE EVANS.

Medford Sun Had Some Fun at Expense of the Popular Evangelist and Democrat.

Through a press clipping bureau the Democrat has received the following which appeared in the Medford Sun during the meeting of Bruce Evans, at this city, which the Democrat did not notice at the time. It is so cute in its composition that we give it without comment:

From reading of the Albany Democrat's account of an evangelistic service in that city, the evangelist in charge seems to possess the oratorical power of an Ingersoll, the homely philosophy of Abraham Lincoln, the simplicity of Bryant, the humor of Mark Twain, the facility of expression of Shakespeare, the pitiless logic of Dan Webster, the rhetorical flourishes of President Wilson, the dramatic ability of Forbes-Robertson, the ability to please of Charlie Chaplin, and the story telling powers of Gus Newbury, besides being a fair to middlin' acrobat and vaudeville.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Young People of Evangelical Church Name Officers, With Ruby Moench, President.

The young people of the Evangelical church held their semi-annual election on the evening of Friday Dec. 3. The officers elected for the first half of the year of 1916 are:

President, Ruby Moench; vice president, Chester Hughson; recording secretary, Ena V. Hughson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. May Fouts; missionary secretary, Mrs. Ida East; treasurer, Florence Naper; organist, Zeretta Emmitt, and choirist, Leslie Babb.

The chairman of the committees will choose their assistants in a future meeting of the executive committee.

Good work is being done by this society of young people.
