SATURDAY NIGHT THOUGHTS

Another week has passed, the first in a new year, the start for the great uncertainty of events, a leap out into the darkness of time. The year starts with an awful year raging across the big ocean, and this country in the arms of peace. We wonder what the year will bring forth. The possibilities are so colossal we hesitate to even hazard a guess at anything.

One thing seems apparent, though and that is, that the prospects of peace in Europe, are very poor. Just now there is nothing for a hisis for securing a visit from the dove, and there are few signs that the bird will be along very soon, and many to indicate that Mars will continue to rule.

The actual warfare now is no much, just skirmishing, with an occasional struggle in the snow and cold, waiting for the summer to come forth, and then the bullets will again fill the air. A campaign of tremendous force is being planned, but, like most of the campaigns will not be at all as planned. In the meantime other countries, not yet in the disaster are preparing to sacrifice themselves.

Of interest to this country are the doings of congress. This session will be of the most importance since the rebellion, the course taken establishing a new policy, if it shall be carried out as some are endeavoring to do threatening the very foundation stones of our democracy.

This has been the week of prayer all over the United States, when people seek to get closer to their Maker in an effort to start the New Year with better purposes for right living. It is considerable of a church affair, and greatly needed, for the church member needs a constant reminder of his obligations, often as weak in his daily life as the man entirely out of the church, and the worse because of the livery. The world is looking for a distinction, and when it fails to find it there is always bound to be criticism. It is up to the church member to live above it.

MISFITS

If you hear a jingle, it is back in Washington, wheels in the heads of some of the jinglers running loose over the European situation.

Big poles.—Take down the poles and let Willamette street be seen.—Eugene Register.

While we had only four or five inches of snow here altogether, up at Seattle, on the Sound, under the eaves of Rainier, there was a fall of fourteen inches, with that much on the ground at one time.

My, but people are hot on the trail of this proposed 12 year old military training act.

If the people were given a chance to whack militarism they would do it by such a majority as to make the promoters dizzy.

The man who goes into partnership with the munition makers and arms manufacturers will hear from it if the voters ever get a chance at them.

While the light holds out and burns there is hope. Mrs. Bob Fitzsimmons, formerly in vaudeville, has been converted, and will give her experience.

One feature of the movies will have to stop, and that is the scheme of having married women unfaithful to their husbands, and husbands unfaithful to their wives. The influence of it is bad. In the big cities a special fight will be waged against such pictures.

There may be some of it in real life; but it is not a good thing to make a display of.

Fortunately most of the pictures cover other fields. It is to be hoped they do so entirely.

Speaking of the word movies, a writer says it is just as silly as would be the word printies applied to newspapers.

But what's in a name, anyway. It's sort of a nickname, such as prevails among boys, and doesn't hurt any one.

Now let everybody start in to bat 300 this year.
