EASTERN PLAYERS PLEASE
BIG HOUSE AT GLOBE

A full house greeted the opening performance of the Eastern Players at the Globe Theatre last night, and was rewarded with an excellent presentation of David Graham Phillips' well known play, "The Price She Paid." The story was cleverly presented by a company of six artists, who received applause throughout the entire performance.

Bonnie Bernard, in the principal feminine role won the hearts of the audience, as Dorothy Mitchell won their hatred, for the artistic work in their various roles. B. Claman made an excellent man with the money, and Val Howard was popular as the hero and man with the heart. Otis Easton gave a splendid portrayal of the selfish, narrow absconding brother.

The play deals with the trials of a sweet girl who inherits the abilities and good qualities of her sculptor father, whose work she is trying to finish in his name to compete for a prize. Surrounded by a poor and selfish family, she is asked to marry a man she does not love to satisfy their craving for wealth and power. The man with the money is in love with her, and she finally agrees to a bargain, which she loses in the end with the wrecking of her finished statue, but is released to the man she loves.

The play tonight will be a comedy drama, "The Road to Ruin."

IDEAL YOUNG MAN DESCRIBED BY GIRL

The following interesting letter on "The Ideal Young Man" was received yesterday by Rev. M. Howard Fagan, of the First Christian church, in response to his invitation to the young ladies to write to him their idea of such a man. The one given herewith is one of the best so far received, and sets up a pretty strong requirement for the young lady's choice. Here is what she wants:

Mr. M. Howard Fagan: Dear Sir: In answer to your request I will here give the qualifications, as they exist in my mind, of an ideal young man.

My ideal man must first of all be brave, courageous and manly. He must not be afraid of what other people will say but when he makes up his mind a thing is right and that his duty lies in such a direction he will go on regardless of what people may say against him. My ideal young man must be well educated, having a keen intellect well cultivated. He must be able to take his place in the world and make good. He must have a noble Christian character. He must be kind, gentle and considerate, yet I would not have him a "sissy" or a "goody-good." He must be a man, every inch of him, clean in body and mind. He must be able to look the world in the eye and not flinch before it.

"For human weakness" I would allow him to be determined to have his own way. He must be able to make the girl he loves, love him in spite of herself. When he marries he must be the head of his own house. Loving and considerate, yet masterful.

I know what profession he must

"THE CAPTAIN AND THE LADY" AT OPERA HOUSE

For the first three nights of next week the Richardson & Talbert company present a modern drama that is considered one of the best efforts of one of America's most successful playwrights; it is a story of how a young man who is weak and goaded on by his friends he takes money that does not belong to him in order that his wife may live in better circumstances and about to be arrested he sends his wife to the rooms of the man he has stolen from and she pleads desperately for her husband's freedom. Droll comedy lightens the strong dramatic situations at times. "Her Husband's Wife" last time tonight, one of the most enjoyable comedies ever seen here.
