DIGLEY BELL IN FAMOUS GEO. ADE PLAY TONIGHT

"Father and the Boys," the five-act Broadway Universal comedy-drama, featuring the distinguished Broadway star, Digby Bell, is an amusingly entertaining story written by George Ade of an old man's "come back." It tells how father puts one over on his two sons, who have social and athletic ambitions.

Lemuel Morewood is a wealthy business man to whom riches bring no pleasure because he has entirely lost the sympathy of his sons, for whom he lives. Billy is society mad and completely enthralled by Mrs. Bruce Gullford, a leader of the smart set. Tom thinks of nothing but sport. He is an amateur athlete of national prominence. Lemuel longs to see his boys interested in the business. Especially, he wants Tom to marry Frances Berkeley; Billy to marry Emily Donelson. But the boys will have none of them.

Bessie Brayton is a Western orphan who has come to New York to earn her living by dancing and entertaining society. She meets the Morewoods at a dinner given by them, and Major Dilworth offers to help her sell her half interest of a mine in Nevada, which later proves to be worth more than that rascal pretends. The play ends happily for the father and all concerned, but the ending of it is an amusing matter and can best be appreciated by being seen. At the Hub tonight and Thursday.

PERSONALS FROM SHEDD AND THAT VICINITY

The local "bob white" Boy Scouts took in two new members and is flourishing.

Alvie Croft has gone to Indiana on a vacation trip.

Robert Arnold and two daughters were in Albany on a business trip. The Woodmen and Circle had an installation the other night.

The Rebeccas met and took in a few more members.

The Ash Swale hunting club will give an oyster supper Friday night.

Mr. Kennedy has just returned from a vacation trip to Seattle.

A. M. Brock has been spraying his peach orchard, and says he has signs

REMARKABLE BASKET BALL.

At Columbus, Ohio, is a Team of Blind Boys Beating By a Big Margin.

Columbus, O., Jan. 12.—Columbus has a basketball team that literally can shoot baskets with its eyes shut! Fans who've seen the boys in action say they're wonders. The little squad of sightless lads wear the colors of the Ohio State school for the blind.

There's Joe Arndt of Lima, Ohio, whirlwind forward; Joe's left eye has only 3-200 normal vision and his right eye 5-200 normal vision. Yet Joe, in the three games he's played this season, has averaged 15½ baskets a game. B. McQueen, captain and center, has a cataract on his right eye and his left is 1-25 normal. But he has a weird, uncanny sense of where the basket is and sticks 'em in the pan, one, two, three.

There isn't a man on the squad who can read even poster print. Totally blind students are the team's backers. They can tell when a basket is made and their rooting would shame a college bunch. Are they winners? The squad has secured 205 points thus far this season to its opponents 68!

OPPORTUNITY FOR FORTUNE.

Old Spanish Fake Again Being Worked by Anton Perez of Valencia, Spain.

Some more of those notorious letters from Anton Perez, Valencia, Spain, have been received. They give one an opportunity to get a big interest in $327,250, though, as a matter of fact in the letter there is a period instead of comma, used. As much as our heart goes out for people in distress and would like to help Anton, poor fellow, out of prison, it is necessary to decline to make a trip to meet the fellow and get the check indispensable to securing the money, as badly as we need a third of the sum. $109,000 or thereabouts would come in mighty handy these days.

of a heavy crop again this year.

J. Davies shipped a carload of hogs to Portland market.

Mrs. Chas. Arnold and daughters made a business trip to Albany.

Mr. Williams of Philomath was here for a carload of hay.

Three carloads of gravel arrived from Albany, which the men are hauling to the highway.

Shedd basketball teams are practicing to play a heavy schedule of games.

Jack Cornett caught five coons the other day in the snow.

Mrs. Freeland's room again has a half holiday for the best attendance.

The farmers around Shedd say there is very little damage done by the freeze.

METROPOLITAN OPERA

COMPANY TOMORROW

One of the most brilliant events of the entire season is promised at the Globe Theatre on Thursday, Jan. 13, when the New York Metropolitan singers, six international artists, will appear in moments from Grand Opera. The company includes Miss Florence Hawkins, a young American Singer. Her flute-like voice and charming stage appearance is bound to make an impression with local music lovers. Miss Clara Freuler, mezzo-soprano, a former member of the Metropolitan company in New York and last season a principal of the Chicago Grand Opera Company is said to have a voice that compares favorably with that of Madame Sembrich's. Francis W. Cowles, a well-known baritone, has a superb voice. He has style and finish and a fine stage appearance and his diction is admirable. Miss Molly Byerly Wilson, contralto from the Royal Opera in Vienna, possesses a voice of most unusual depth. Indeed it has been authoritatively stated that she has the deepest known female voice. Alice McClung, the pianist, is too well known for comment here. Skovgaard, Denmark's greatest violinist, is the star of the company and his playing has proved a veritable revelation wherever he appears. He is in the front rank of the leading violinists of the world and can be compared to Kubelik, Ysaye and Kreisler. The prices are very low. Imagine six international artists at these prices. Seats now on sale at Woodworth Drug Co.

H. S. Debate Friday—

On Friday night of this week will occur the first high school debate of the year, when one of the teams of this city will debate with a Lebanon team at Albany and the other with a Brownsville team at Brownsville, one of the Albany teams having the affirmative and the other the negative of the question: "Resolved that the United States should adopt the Swiss military system."

A Corvallis Fire Drill—

At a fire drill at Corvallis, among the different schools the entire exit was made by one school in 36½ seconds. The prize, though, was given on points, covering speed, orderly exit, handling of hose and orderly return.
