Home Is—

Where you wish you were about twenty times a day when you are away from it.

Where you got three square meals a day and didn't appreciate them.

Where you can use the shower bath any time you want it.

Where you can step across the bath wearing a Turkish towel and a cake of soap without fear of seven or eight people seeing you.

Where you don't have to dress for dinner.

Where you don't have to tip some one every two hours.

Where the view isn't much, but the food and beds and company and general environments have got it all over any other spot on the map.

Where you go when all the other places are closed. Boston Herald

Popsy at a Feast.

Popsy's account of the first mayor's banquet which he attended in 1923 illustrates the earliness of the proceedings at that time. He made his way to the Guildhall at noon "went up and down to see the ladies" and then had a drink, refusing wine in consequence of a vow, but perspiring his conscience that he might indulge in hipposas, a compound of wine and spices. Soon after 1 o'clock came the first mayor, "and so all to dinner. Afterward Popsy strolled about the la-

No, He Wasn't Sick.

The ocean liner was rolling like a ship, but, as usual in such instances, the passenger was aggressively, disgustingly healthy. "Sick eh?" he remarked to a pale green person who was leaning on the rail. The pale green person regarded the healthy one with all the scorn he could muster. "Sick nothing!" he snorted weakly. "I'm just hanging over the front of the boat to see how the captain cranks it!"—Arzonant

Bowls—Yes, I know I'm ugly, but there is one great consolation. Biggs—What is that? Bowls—If ever I should become great and the people should resolve to erect a statue to my memory they won't be able to make me out any uglier than I am.—London Telegraph

Preparedness on the Farm.

To my way of thinking, that's the best thing about farm work—you're not to be prepared for all manner of emergencies that you can't possibly prepare for. Maybe that sounds like an absurdity, but it isn't.—William H. Lighton in "Happy Hollow Farm"
