SATURDAY NIGHT THOUGHTS.

For about eighteen months it has been war steadily, until we are all saturated with it. Those engaged in the carnival of disaster are about exhausted, their countries either laid waste or milked dry financially.

Our own country has felt the influence in a marked way. Some have taken advantage of the matter for financial gain and millions have been made. They and others are looking for future advantages and are seeking to place our country on a basis of militarism.

Of all fool things in the world the most so is the claim that carrying a revolver will work for peace. Many battleships and big guns are the same.

It may be a sign of conditions when five men can enter a bank in a busy section of a city like Chicago and get away with $15,000 in cash.

More snow this week reminds us how little we desire it in this country where conditions are all against snow. Our homes are not built for it and ordinarily we do not dress for it.

The ideal along any line is a big thing, close to perfection, something not difficult to describe, but hard to attain to. Like eugenic marriages they often fail to pan out in the last analysis, and we certainly all have our faults and lots of them.

MISFITS

Ashland grows while lithia flows. This is the new slogan for that town.

Albany flies with its own wings, without any state appropriations, and we are getting thar.

If all the rest of the world has been making millions off the European war what have the countries at war been making?

Answer—fools of themselves.

No matter how the war terminates it is a loss to the winner.

And the murderers, what shall be their reward?

Western Oregon will be full of railroad centers eventually, all the best ones; but look on the map and tell us if any looks better than Albany, and we have the river too.

A Shoemaker is superintendent of the street car lines in Eugene.

When wheat is up salt your money down.

When your money is down make it useful.

Lack of faith is now given as the cause of the failure of the Ford expedition.

Why not wait and claim the credit anyway?

An ex. wants to know why a sinner is like a goat. Don't know unless it is because he is always butting into other people's business.

A Portland man was charged with stealing electricity, therefore taking something he could not handle and yet could use.

Mr. Winegar, of Monmouth, sells wire fences and gang plows and is not a grocer.

The meteors in schools are often stones in business life.

The student who has to plod to get what he obtains may be at the top in the successes of life.

GET RICH QUICK SCHEMES. For Big Investors They May Work, but Not For Small Ones. "Those who labor hard for their money and who have a still more arduous struggle in saving small sums," says a banker in the American Magazine, "naturally fall easy victims in many instances to the desire for sudden riches. But the fatal error lies in supposing that the person of small means can afford to take the chance if he or she loses they lose all. The large capitalist and the professional money lender have the law of averages working with them. They can afford to sink money into twenty ventures if they make a thousand per cent on one. They are protected by the law of chance, the average safety of their investments depending upon no single risk.

Disraeli and the Editor. Disraeli would dearly have liked to suspend the London Globe years ago when that paper, then a Whig organ, fell foul of him over his "Vindication of the English Constitution." Few editors have ever been so roughly abused as in Disraeli's letter to the Times: "It is not my passion for notoriety that has induced me to tweak the editor of the Globe by the nose and to inflict sundry kicks upon the buser part of his base body, to make him eat dirt and his own words, fouler than any filth, but because I wished to show to the world what a miserable poltroon, what a craven duffard, what a literary scarecrow, what a mere thing, stuffed with straw and rubbish, is the so-called director of public opinion and official organ of Whig politics."—London Optic
