HOG RAISERS MEETING BILLEO FOR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Meeting to Stimulate Raising of Porkers Will Be of Benefit to Linn Co. Farmers.

On Wednesday, Feb. 9, there will be a big meeting of farmers and grangers in this city to discuss the hog problem. People who are raising these "mortgage raisers" will find much of interest at this meeting. Speakers will be present from the Union Stock Yards at Portland, from the Oregon Agricultural College, and from this city. The meeting will be informal and any one present will be invited to ask questions. The gathering is being promoted by A. C. Schmitt, the Oregon Electric railway bifficials, and others.

The main purpose of the meeting will be to discuss better selling arangements between the farmer and the buyer. Local people interested in the development of the farming industry in this community have wondered why more hogs were not rais ed, and an effort will be made at nex-Wednesday's meeting to find out the cause of the shortage. With a packing plant clamoring for more hogs, the stock yards in Portland and the eastern market always open there is a stimulate hog growing.

On the Monday following this meeting, Feb. 14, there will be a big convention of Willamette valley farm ers at the Union Stock Yard in North Portland. The farmers and their families will be guests of the stock yards officials, a dinner will be served, and the entire plant will be thrown open to the inspection of the visitors. They will be told how hogs and cattle will be handled, the problems of community marketing will be discussed, followed by brief talks by experts in answer to questions. Next Wednesday's meeting will be an excellent forerunner for the Portland meeting or those who will attend that one.

Complete details for the meeting ere will be announced in due time. and a program that will be interesting and vastly instructive to hog raisers and prospective hog raisers.

CAMELS OF THE DESERT.

Their Peculiar Adaptability to Life in the Sandy Wastes.

The camel thrives only in desert regions. And herein lies its useful-ness to man, for by its means alone is he enabled to cross barren tracts otherwise impassable. This ability to live without water and with little food for long periods is due to two natural reservoirs. Water is stored in special pockets in the lining of the stomach, while a large mass of fat is stored on the back, forming the characteristic hump, though, according to popular be-tief, it is here that the water is held.

Though it will manage to subsist for tong periods on the thoray scrub such as forms the only vegetation of desert areas and with very little water, its complaceacy in these matters may be overtaxed, as was disastrously shown during the first expedition to Khartum

Two other factors in the qdaptability of the camel to a desert life have to be taken into account. These are the feet and nostrils. The first named have but two toes, profected by very thick, herny pads to resist the burning sand, while the nostrils are long and slittle and can be closed at will, thereby enabling the animal to survive the awful sandstorms which so frequently endanger the lives of travelers in these Inhospitable regions -St. Paul Pioneer

ALBANY MAN TELLS' WHAT HE THINKS IDEAL CHURCH

There Will Be More of Them at the Christian Church Sunday Evening.

Christ came to earth to teach men o live right, assuring them of the future if they so lived. The church (of ourse referring to any and all denomnations which are taching the divine principles of Christ) should be repreentative of Christ.

Christ's teaching all centered round the brotherhood of man idea. Most of Christ's illustrations were nade through commonplace material circumstances, showing that He recgnized material as well as spiritual recessity

My ideal church would necessarily controlled by ideal Christian peode. It would look to the material as vell as the spiritual welfare of the ommunity in which it existed, there by meriting the gratitude and confilence of that class of us whom the Lord has seen fit to place in the mafority-the poor. It would not make temporary relief of misery its main effort, but would show wisdom in deising measures for the prevention of misery, just as the physician attempts to prevent disease.

It would be a place where the creed f greed would be subjected to coninual denunciation, for greed neces situtes and begets greed and all its ontingent horrors.

The members of my ideal church rould view political subjects from the bristian standpoint and cast their vallots accordingly, letting no matter of personal interest stand in the way of the benefit to the majority. They would teach that there is no real prosperity in a prosperity that is con-fined to a favored few. They would teach the poor, not only by precept ut by example, the fallacy of exalting people of wealth because of their wealth, teaching and demonstrating that the only lines of caste should be the lines of intellect and morality. It would teach the absolute dishonesty of creating false impressions through overdressing and other efforts to be onspicuous through lavishness,

It would devote its entire resources toward making our own country so near an ideal nation that other people would desire that we send them in-structors, would themselves maintain those instructors, and no battleships would be necessary to protect them. My ideal church would be the comunity center, would maintain club soms, baths, etc., where the families ould assemble for evenings of social feature. In fact my ideal church would be as Christ's teaching should be inter-preted, a guide for our conduct here, so that in accepting its guidance may have no worry about the here-
