SATURDAY NIGHT THOUGHTS.

In the Northwest this week we have been having an experience in bad weather such as has rarely, if ever, been known here before. While at our own city we have not been hit much, in many places the damage has been severe. At Portland, where the chilly breezes of the Columbia come rushing down off the snow and ice of the north and east, things have been paralyzed, business stopped and everything at a standstill. In future years it will be something to remember. It is a strange fact that at Albany we failed to be visited in the same manner, in fact we had nothing here at all that was bad in comparison. Thus neighbors are treated differently, often, by the weather.

Another cloud loomed up this week over something that occurred months ago, the sinking of the Lusitania, a matter that should have been dropped long ago. The quibbling is over the disavowal of the torpedoing of the ship, something that might well be smoothed over, without exactions on way or the other. Nations should be as reasonable as individuals should be over such things.

A feature of the war that is attracting attention is the new system of attack, one that is destined to play a great part in warfare. It may be possible to make it so extensive in its character as to become dangerous. A thousand aeroplanes loaded with bombs might terrorize a city. Already forty or fifty have come near doing so. This is becoming a world of marvels.

The uncertainty of life is demonstrated daily by sudden deaths, announced in a breath, with hardly a warning. Every person should set their house in order for the great visitor, with his scythe, that reaps down youth and old age.

This week Mr. and Mrs. President made a trip west, in order to give the president an opportunity to give his views on preparedness. His talks have been listened to and read about with great interest. Many may differ with him, but none doubt his sincerity. The subject is a colossal one, and we all do well to consider it from all standpoints.

New York has become the greatest city of the world, a fact from numerous standpoints. After all, though, any city is desirable for a home that has character. The most desirable city to live in is not necessarily the biggest. Big things, nevertheless are always of interest from the Cheops, of Egypt to an elephant, or a 300 pound man.

MISFITS

The high school of Newport thrilled an audience in the presentation of "The King of Timbuctoo."

The person who listens at a keyhole is called an eavesdropper and sneak. The person who listens on a party line telephone is also an eavesdropper and a sneak.

Newberg claims the biggest breeder of hogs in the N. W. What's the matter of Salem?

A Great Discovery.

Brownsville Times—Albany has a corset factory. Also a crispet foundry.

There is a dispute as to whether the ground hog saw his shadow at Albany. Some declare he could have done so for three or four minutes at about 11 o'clock on groundhog day.

Having discovered that hot milk is a better stimulant than whiskey there should certainly be a run on dairies.

W. E. Gwynn is wine to run for dist. atty. of Lincoln county and ought to win.

Pap Hayward will have to take a back seat when Lamar Toozee gets back from Europe.

Around the Waiste home at Independence there is a social activity.

A Bandon woman got mad, and rushed to the local paper, in which she declared: "One may expect to have her name blackmailed by people who are not fit to blacken one's shoes."

The word in has now been generally added to that of Villa, making it villain.

An X says that a painless dentist is one who suffers no pain himself.

With no fast dyes it is probable that all hosiery will run, making us all sprinters.

Speaking of running did you ever see how fast a dollar would run when you started it on a trip around town paying debts.

Howard Frame had his frame busted while coasting at Phoenix, Southern Or. a few days ago.

Skunk skins have long been sold for furs. Now it has been discovered that garlic juice is a splendid dressing for wounds, stopping infection, causing the wound to heal quickly. It is being used by the French in their big war.

A 1920 POUND STEER.

Corvallis Man Offered Prize for Near-est Guess of Weight of Animal Dressed.

A steer on exhibition at Corvallis weighed 1254 1/2 pounds dressed. Julian McFadden, the owner offered $10 worth of meat to the person guessing nearest the weight. Five guessed within half a pound, Mrs. Louis Miller, George W. Barton, W. W. Chapman, E. A. Schrepe, and Robert Jones. Each bet $2 worth of meat. There were nine hundred guesses in all. The guesses ranged from 620 to 2500. The animal alive at his best weighed 1920 pounds, but when butchered weighed 70 pounds less.
