LOST— ANOTHER ISSUE.

These are sad days for Republican politicians in search of a campaign issue. Deprived of the full dinner pail, foreign relations and preparedness, things to shout about by the attitude and achievements of the Democratic administration, there was only protection left for a slogan. And now that's gone. The National Association of Manufacturers, by its president, Col. George Pope, has put its seal of approval on President Wilson's recommendation for a tariff commission to take the tariff out of politics. "For years," Col. Pope says, "the National Association of Manufacturers has been endeavoring to have a tariff commission appointed so that the subject of tariff making might be put on something like a scientific basis." And, he continues, the president's acceptance of the principle "will be received with satisfaction by the country at large and is particularly gratifying to the National Association of Manufacturers, which, by formal resolutions and through the individual efforts of its membership, embracing all shades of political opinion, has urged that the tariff be taken out of politics."

If Col. Pope voices the real sentiments of his organization, and there is no reason to believe that he does not, an important source of Republican campaign revenue has been cut off, as well as a Republican issue lost. American manufacturers have been "held up" for years for contributions to the G. O. P. campaign chest. If their expressed desire for a non-partisan, scientific tariff commission is sincere, they will have no further use for Republican promises of such a commission that never are fulfilled. They will be getting what they profess to be desirous of by the recommendation of a Democratic president and the vote of a Democratic congress, and they will be in a position to tell the G. O. P. fat fryers to go chase themselves.

THE OVEREATER.

Insurance statistics show that the man who overeats, as well as the man who indulges in alcoholic drinks is a bad risk, according to Arthur Hunter, a life insurance actuary of New York. Mr. Hunter delivered a warning against over-indulgence in an address to a Young Men's Christian Association. He said that the heavy diner as well as the heavy drinker was sure of a short life, but seldom a merry one, because the conditions under which he lived precluded the full enjoyment of either mental or physical well being. But at the top of the list of life-shortening habits he placed the use of alcoholic liquors.

"Seventy years ago," said Mr. Hunter, "an abstainer was unknown. When the first abstainer applied to a London company for insurance a special meeting of the board of directors was called to deal with this phenomenon and a special premium was demanded. Contrary to all expectations, this man lived to be 82 years old."

ANDREW CARNEGIE IN NEED.

In the March Woman's Home Companion it is announced that Mr. Carnegie is in dire need, as a result of his practice of giving to charity. He has given away $350,000,000, and has only $20,000,000 left.

"Everybody talks about Mr. Carnegie's conditions, but nobody moves. That is, practically nobody. A man named Marquis announced that he would receive contributions for Mr. Carnegie. A small boy busted open his Christmas bank with the family hammer and sent in two coppers. Whereupon the wily Marquis, who evidently is a potential millionaire himself, called attention to the fact that he never promised to forward contributions to Mr. Carnegie—simply to receive them—and decamped with the two cents."
