LADIES OF G. A. R. HAD A BANQUET AND SPEECHES

They Also Presented Comrade Andrew Crooks With Fine Gold Pin.

The bazaar and banquet given today by the Ladies of Fair Oaks Circle No. 1, G. A. R., was a very pleasing and successful affair. For sale were numerous and beautiful articles, and the dinner served on the cafeteria plan was substantial and satisfying. After dinner an informal meeting was held with Commander E. F. Sev in charge during which the presiding officer spoke a few words of appreciation of the services and life here of Andrew Crooks, who for ten years has been in Albany for several of these later years has been adjutant of McPherson post No. 5, G. A. R. Then he was presented a gold G. A. R. pin coming through Mrs. Jennie Brown Carnine, on behalf of the ladies and comrades. Adjutant Crooks with much emotion expressed his hearty thanks. He expects to soon leave for Michigan.

Rich as Croesus.

The boys were bragging about their parents. "I bet my father is richer than your father," said one. "He has to pay lots and lots of money for taxes every year." "That's nothing," retorted the other. "My father is so rich that he can afford to hire a lawyer to fix things so he don't have to pay any taxes."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Suspicious Document.

"All this here business education among women is touch on us cooks." "How so?" "The last lady I worked for gimme a reference written in shorthand. What did she say about me, I wonder?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Cutting Stovepipe.

Use a can opener to cut stovepipe if you have no large pair of shears. The can opener answers the purpose admirably.—Popular Science Monthly.

Inevitable.

"I saw stars in that railroad collision." "Naturally, when the cars were tele-scoped."—Baltimore American.

Without courage there cannot be truth, and without truth there can be no virtue.

R. L. Stevenson and Women. It may perhaps be recalled that it was to the late Dr. Trudeau that Stevenson once admitted that he felt he had been rash when he promised a lady over the dinner table that he would put a real woman into his next book. "I've often wondered, Stevenson," said the doctor, "but never thought to ask, why do you never put a real woman in a story?" "Good heavens, Trudeau," was the reply, "when I have tried I find she talks like a grenadier!"—Westminster Gazette.

Spirit of the Home. I never realized before how rare indeed is the real home—the temple reared to house a family life, with its altar dedicated to parenthood. I saw that it is not enough to have furniture "good," to have colors "safe," not enough to show a pretty, well appointed house to the world. A real home must be a setting for a living, loving, sorrowing and conquering man and woman. It is not enough to study textures, plans and building materials. It is just the old story of the letter and the spirit. The creative spirit can make any home beautiful, but the most letter perfect house is a dead shell unless it houses loving, growing life.—Emily Newell Blair in CountrySide Magazine.

The Footmen's Gallery.

There was in one part of the theater where in bygone days smoking was permitted the footmen's gallery, where servants in attendance on masters visiting the theater were admitted free. But the occupants of the footmen's gallery were so noisy and they so frequently hissed out of existence plays that their masters approved of that the privilege was withdrawn, and the gallery became the "shilling gallery," which has kept up to a great extent the traditional privilege of out-spoken criticism originally exercised by footmen.—London Chronicle.

Golf Defined.

On the terrace of a country club a group of non-golfers were taking tea. A male non-golfer said thoughtfully: "Golf isn't to be defined as billiards gone to grass." "Splice on the green, I'd call it," said a female non-golfer. "Of the last flicker in the dying fire of athletics," sneered a young football player. "The misuse of mind and language," suggested a tennis champion. "No, no; you're all wrong," said a famous angler. "Golf is simply a game wherein the ball lies badly and the player well."—Washington Post.

The Kind.

"There is one class of men who are always ready to help another at a pinch." "I know. Policemen."—Baltimore American.

Not Unlike It.

He—Did you tell Bones I had a head like a tack? She—No. I said you were a man of great penetration.—Harvard Lampoon.
