SMART BOYS.

Just how smart it is good for a boy to be when young is a good deal of an enigma. It is often said that prodigies in the long run amount to no more than some of the slow ones, if as much; but that has never been settled. A magazine tells a remarkable case, that of Raymond Ray, of Los Angeles, California. The ten year old marvel at his present pace will have his Ph. D. at the age of sixteen, outstripping in actual learning the German wonder of the last century, Karl Witte. While his contemporaries are locating the Atlantic ocean he is engrossed in advanced Spanish and chemistry.

"As soon as Raymond began to take notice of the world about him, his mother taught him to distinguish colors, the most striking ones like white, black, red and blue being taken first. She always talked to him as she would an adult, scorning 'baby talk' as degrading to his intelligence. Pictures were used a great deal. Before he was ten months old he learned to call the presidents of the United States by their right names. His progress in reading was just as remarkable. At the age of a year and a half he knew his alphabet, at three he could read and write, and at five he read 'Hiawatha' in public.

"The boy is well developed physically; strong, athletic, and keenly alive to his finger tips. He has a natural talent for music and dramatic art and has repeatedly appeared in public. His mother claims that he is not a prodigy and that any normal boy could accomplish as much with proper training.

MAN OUT OF JOBS.

In the March American Magazine is an interesting article by Hugh S. Fullerton entitled "Getting and Holding a Job." In it we are told about new scientific methods used by advanced concerns for determining the fitness of prospective employees.

"The chief reason workers do not hold their jobs," says Mr. Fullerton, "lie in lying, drinking, vicious habits, laziness. But two other classes are responsible for a large percentage of office changes. These are the shifters or the wanderers.

"The shifters are fellows who are dissatisfied with any job after they have held it for a time and those who have not yet discovered their proper places. These are not wanted anywhere.

"The wanderers are a smaller class of restless ones who move from city to city. They are tramps of business, like the now extinct tramp printer. The class is larger than anyone outside business would imagine. Some of the cards on record at some of the offices where the Employers' Advisory idea obtains show that men have worked in Yokohama, Sydney, Singapore, London, New York, Denver, San Francisco and Chicago in six years, and the expert, glancing over such a card, merely says: 'What is the use? He will be in Boston or Tierra del Fuego next year.'

DAME FASHION.

In the east, where prosperity is said to be raging not the men alone are wild, but the women, as well. In fashions they are going madly to extremes. A few new suggestions will show to what extremes they easily go: A hat is to have a life-sized chandelier on it, roosting all over the crown. Another hat is to have alternating tints of old blue, old rose, yellow, purple and ecru, in ribbons, coming together at the crown in a long tassel of all the colors. A pair of shoes is to be of violet kid, with uppers of green taffeta, embroidered in sprays of spangled herbage. Stockings are to have the owners' name, favorite motto or pet expression. Parasols are to be fanciful to the extreme, all manner of colors and figures. In the spring they are to be up to their ears in ruffs and chokers, and this is only the beginning.

MISFITS

John Lik-us-ky is the name of a Salem man, charged with the theft of a dog.

Theodore Burton, the ex-senator with the wonderful memory, has decided to run for president. Evidently his memory only works on one side.

Insulted a Better Friend.

That peppery gentleman over in Seattle who is so disgruntled and indignant because some one spoke rather disrespectfully of Washington, had he stopped to think would have realized that all his life he had daily overheard much worse things said about God, and he never resented them either. Why?—Salem Journal.

Revenge seems to be a big word in the Chinese language.

The tongs used in marital warfare years ago were tame affairs compared with the present day Tongs of the Celestials.

And what has become of the man who was made bald-headed by a broom in the hands of his wife.

The modern way seems to be to just get up and leave.

About a Much Abused Word.

"True friendship is of royal lineage. It is of the same kith and breeding as loyalty and self-forgetting devotion, and proceeds upon a higher principle even than they. For loyalty may be blind and friendship must not be; devotion may sacrifice principles of right choice which friendship must guard with an excellent and watchful care. You must act in your friend's interest whether it please him or not. The object of love is to serve, not to win."—Woodrow Wilson.

After all our tongues cause more trouble than Tongs.
