OVERCOMING EVIL.

He was a practical man as well as a follower of the Great Teacher who first said, "Be not overcome of evil; overcome evil with good."

Scientific conclusions of modern psychology are anticipated in that saying.

Advertising men have worked out the same principle in the maxim, "Don't knock; boost." Teachers have worked out the same principles in their rules for inculcating right habits instead of suppressing bad habits. Prison wardens have worked out the same system in the modern practice of trying to show men how to be good rather than to prevent their being bad.

Overcoming evil with good is sound business, it is sound politics, it is sound pedagogy, it is sound statesmanship.

Admitting that we have not done altogether with physical force in this world, it is proved over and over that the ways of peace are infinitely more practical, infinitely more effective, vastly more aggressive and incomparably more conclusive than the forces of combat.

The old world way is to meet force with force. It fails. The American idea is to overcome force by reason, by good faith and by deference to the public opinion of the world. It works. —Eastern Ex.

A CONGRESSIONAL PRAYER.

On Washington's birthday Rev. Couden offered the following, called a prayer; but only partly so, about as much a speech to God and man, but pretty all the same:

We bless Thee, our Father in heaven, for the spirit of hero worship residing in the heart of man, which not only inspires him with gratitude, admiration, and praise for the hero, but inspires him to go and do likewise. The history of the world, sacred and profane, clusters round our heroes, whose deeds have marked the progress of mankind in all the ages. The nation that cherishes the memory of its heroes and strives to emulate their virtues will live and increase its usefulness. Today millions not only in the United States of America but the lovers of liberty in all the world will pour out their gratitude, admiration, and praise for our immortal Washington. A hero in war, a hero in peace, a hero in shaping the destiny of our Republic. Time has not dimmed his glory, but has added infinitely to its splendor. A stainless character, unselfish in his devotion to right, truth, and justice. His memory a challenge to patriotism, integrity, and undying faith in a God of justice, love, and mercy. We thank Thee that he thus lives in the hearts of men, in the sacred institutions of our country. May we not only honor him in our thought but in our lives, that our Republic may continue to grow in all that makes a nation great.

Our father's God, to Thee, Author of liberty, To Thee I sing; Long may our land be bright With freedom's holy light; Protect us by Thy might, Great God, our King! Amen.

GRANDPA ROOT LASHED.

Grandpa Elihu Root opened the New York state Republican convention with this:

"America has been blindly stumbling along the road that, continued, will lead to war."

In this blessed land of the brave and free, one man has as much right as another to volunteer as prophet. Indeed, so frequently has this right of personal liberty been exercised that the business of political prophecy has become somewhat disreputable, and the same is true, in a large degree, as to prophecy on economic, diplomatic and social matters.

But among the heavyweight prophetic asses must be listed those who base future calamity upon the continuance of policies that have produced peace and prosperity. President Wilson may have been "blindly stumbling along," but no honest man will deny that he has kept this country out of war for 18 months, and that present visible indications are that he will continue his success for some time.

That Grandpa Root had to sound such a keynote shows the awful impoverishment of his party in respect to keynotes that have a real tune.—Ex.

MISFITS

Here is the best of the made up signs that are discovered by funny men in the papers: "Teeth extracted while you wait."

With woman suffrage and national prohibition pulling at its apron strings congress is certainly having a hot old time.

To say nothing of submarines

And preparedness,

And land grants,

&c.

People think it is awful for a man like Billy Sunday to make $100,000 a year helping to save souls for eternity; but it is all right for Charlie Chaplin to make $175,000 a year making a fool of himself.

At last after patient waiting fame is to come to Or. A cougar caught in our own hills is to be an actor in a big movie company's filmdom.

Father.

Used to wonder just why father Never had much time for play. Used to wonder why he'd rather Work each minute of the day. Used to wonder why he never Loafed along the road an' shirked; Can't recall a time whenever Father played while others worked.

Father didn't dress in fashion, Sort of hated clothing new, Style with him was not a passion, He had other things in view. Boys are blind to much that's going On about 'em day by day. And I had no way of knowing What became of father's pay.

All I knew was when I needed Shoes I got 'em on the spot; Everything for which I pleaded Somehow, father always got. Wandered, season after season, Why he never took a rest, And that I might be the reason Then I never even guessed.

Father set a store on knowledge If he'd lived to have his way He'd have sent me off to college And the bills been glad to pay. That I know was his ambition Now and then he used to say He'd have done his earthly mission On my graduation day.

Saw his cheeks were getting paler, Didn't understand just why, Saw his body growing frailer, Then at last I saw him die. Rest had come! His tasks were ended, Calm was written on his brow; Father's life was big and splendid, And I understand it now. —Edgar A. Guest, in Detroit Free Press.
