Trading Stamp Tax Legal—
The supreme court of the United States yesterday upheld the law providing for a tax on trading stamps, as provided in the laws of Washington and Florida. A big tax on the stamps will mean their eventual abolishment.

TEXTILE PRICES RISING.

Eastern Paper Gives the Striking
Manner in Which Things are Changing.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: A seller's market rules throughout the textile trades. Normally the buyer has the whip hand. Now the buyer pleads for goods and haggles neither over price nor delivery.

Hotels in textile centers are crowded. Buyers from the cutter-up down to the retailer have come to look over the ground in person. New York, Philadelphia and Cleveland hotels are filled with them, and the odd thing is that salesmen back from the road have done a larger than normal business themselves. The buyer has taken his quota from the traveling man and has come to the "house" to see about deliveries and make additional purchases.

The woman's garment that used to retail at $25 will range this year between $28.50 and $29.50 and there will be the advances on practically all wearables. Color trouble will not be pronounced this spring, for the great bulk of the garments to be worn the next few months were made from German dyes; what croaking eventuates will come later.

The reasons for the abnormality of the current textile trades are manifold—war uniforms and blankets are taking the world's wool, and wool so used does not get back to commerce. The uniform and camp blanket undergo wear to which civilian use cannot be compared, and those which remain are burned. Furthermore we are exporting cloth on a scale new to this country. South America and Australia are taking goods they never took before. Add to the dye, wool and cloth-export abnormalities railroad embargoes, scarcity of ocean vessels and labor demands. Metal products plants have actually been competing with textile plants for labor. That is not the case in Cleveland, but in the New England towns the munition mills have drawn employees from the cotton mills, and have thus affected their contribution to the general upside down situation in the cloth and garment industries.

Many a garment house which last year took at face value the word of five shortages and the advantage of the cloth maker concerning prospect-buying for delivery far into the future now has an excellent investment.

Human Factors in Good Service

THERE are three parties to each telephone connection—the party who calls, the trained operator and the party who answers.

The telephone user shares with the operator the responsibility for good service.

Accuracy in calling, promptness in answering, clear and deliberate talking and patience on the part of the user and the operator, are essentials of good service.

In making 26,000,000 calls daily, millions of telephone users become integral parts in the Bell system and contribute to the success of the service.
