SITUATION IN MEXICO.

One Who Resided There Several Years Gives His Views on the Subject.

The outrage of Villas band at Columbus has demonstrated that it is necessary to end his career. But the need to send a large force far into a neighbor nation, has brought about a very delicate international situation, which calls for calm, sane mind on the part of our people. And all the more because there is evidently a jingo element that would like to get us into war with Mexico.

There is in Mexico a large, intelligent, patriotic element that is striving against great difficulties to establish that republic on a good basis, with freedom of speech, freedom of the press, religious freedom and good free schools. This class since the days of Juarez is the governing class in that country. They are entitled to the respect and active sympathy of all good people in our country. The reckless statement that our country is destined to conquer all the way down to the Panama Canal, would not be made by any good man who had lived in Mexico long enough to know

I have spent many years as a missionary in Mexico, and have a son now carrying on the same work there. During these years the United States is the one great world power that has steadfastly sought peace, and refused to be drawn into war. This reputation is a big national asset. It would be the height of unwisdom to throw it away.

RUPERT HUGHES "EXCUSE ME" AT THE GLOBE TONIGHT

"Excuse Me!" If you don't want to laugh stay away from the Globe theatre tonight and Saturday. This ripple provoker written by Rupert Hughes, one of the foremost writers of modern times, will be presented for two days with an exceptionally strong Pathe Gold Rooster cast, headed by George F. Marion and Vivian Blackburn.

"Excuse Me!" Don't ever get into such a mixup yourself. You'll laugh yourself sore if you see it. It is all brought about by a young army officer who is ordered to join his regiment in the Philippines and barely has time to catch the Overland Limited for San Francisco in time to embark. He persuades Marjory to elope with him, but they haven't time to get married.

On the same train are a former sweetheart of Marjory's Little Jimmy Wellington, weight 350, who guzzles too much, so his wife takes the train for Reno and he does too. The Rev. Dr. Temple of Ypsilanti who is tired of matrimony, all in the care of a porter who is blamed for everything. What takes place on the train forms 5000 feet of laughs.

Mrs. S. E. Westheimer left this week for her home in Oakland, accompanied by her sister, Marie Long, who goes to southern Oregon to visit with relatives.

the liberal party of that country. Such statements are sure to be carried back there, and to be industriously spread abroad to embarrass and weaken the best men there who desire to be our friends, and whose friendship we ought to cultivate. Such reckless jingoistic statements also seriously hinder the work of a large body of missionaries there who are working for the uplift of Mexico.

A few days ago a statement was circulated that General Herrera had turned against the Americans and to help Villa. Herrera is not that kind of a man. He is a plain farmer, working a large farm with improved machinery, and raising fine stock. He loves farming and only leaves it for military service when duty calls him, the Cincinnati of that republic. He has no sympathy with robbery and murder.

I have spent many years as a missionary in Mexico, and have a son now carrying on the same work there. During these years the United States is the one great world power that has steadfastly sought peace, and refused to be drawn into war. This reputation is a big national asset. It would be the height of unwisdom to throw it away.

ONE OF THEDA BARA'S BEST VAMPIRE ROLES IS "SERPENT"

Tonight and Saturday Theda Bara, the incomparable emotional actress and portrayer of vampire roles, is the headliner at the Rolfe Theatre in "The Serpent," a play on the border of "The Vampire."

Vania Lazar (Theda Bara) is the beautiful daughter of a Russian serf who lives obscurely on the vast estate of the Grand Duke Valonoff, who is nothing more than a wealthy libertine. His one redeeming feature is the love he feels for his son, Prince Valonoff.

While lost on a hunt one day the grand duke stumbles onto the cottage of Lazar and there meets Vania, falling in love with her charms and beauty. Wishing to see more of her he leaves his gold cigarette case, which, as he expects, Vania is sent to return to him. There in his castle the beautiful young girl is greeted joyously and made love to. After her seduction she is kept in lavish luxury until Valonoff tires of her for some other beauty.

Realizing her plight, Vania swears to get even, and the cause of her downfall is laid to man in general. In Paris Vania watches the return of wounded soldiers from the war, and one day she sees a face familiar to her. Following him to a hospital Prince Valonoff is nursed back to health, and under her lure he falls in love with and finally marries her.

After their marriage the grand duke pays a visit to his son, and without recognizing Vania, makes love to her. Her husband returns and finds his wife in the arms of his own father and commits suicide. The last drop of venom from the serpent's fangs has found its mark.

The settings are rich and the play lavishly produced with characteristic Fox liberality.
