SATURDAY NIGHT THOUGHTS.

This week has seen the United States on the verge of war with Germany, or at least on the verge of a break. Mr. Jingo did his best to make the rifle; but it wouldn't erupt, not thus far. Instead, when the cabinet got down to sober investigation the members found that a good many of the reports were lop-sided, not at all as had been reported.

Our border trouble is assuming a more definite shape. We have been looking upon Villa as such a slippery monster that it would be impossible for any one to get him dead or alive; but this Saturday evening it looks more and more as if the bandit is about in the grasp of our soldiers.

If the country gets out of the trouble with only this chase after Villa as the result it will be a pleasing consummation of the experience, after all the miserable jingo efforts in the interest of the coal oil and land owners to involve the U. S. in an intervention campaign.

This week a prominent Bible student of New York has given a series of lectures, in which the present disastrous and troublesome times have been explained in connection with the prophecies of the Bible, whom all recognize as the greatest of all books, and Christians as divine. Dealing with Revelations he has shown the bearings upon the world in connection with the coming of Christ again in judgment, which he declares, according to the signs of the times cannot be far off.

People generally like college pep, and so this week when two of the classes had a rope pull from both sides of a canal with three or four feet of water in it there were general expressions of appreciation from a large crowd that saw the fun. Some people may look upon such things as foolishness, but they are part of college life where there is spirit, and, mixed up with the seriousness of life such things have to play their part as a diversion.

MISFITS

It was stated several weeks ago that Portugal had entered the war. Wonder whereabouts.

And others are not mentioned much. Perhaps just fighting without any press reporters.

The people of the U. S. will view with circumspection the wiping off of that smile on Villa's face.

One would think to read some of the papers that all the Mexicans were false-hearted, unreliable; but there are good Mexicans the same as good Americans, and some of them can be trusted just as far.

Recently down in Texas a $150 Plymouth Rock rooster, upon being awarded first prize dropped dead. Even roosters can't always stand prosperity.

We have tried several words to indicate the slipperiness of Villa; but none of them quite fit the case, according to the latest reports.

Again Spring has arriv.
The buds are cracking as they burst forth.

The flowers are shouting as they bloom gloriously.

The brooks are rippling sweetly.

And new onions and pea vines are shaking their heads in the Spring zephyr.

Please don't tell any one who wrote the above.

Some people in this world are so allied smart they never make any mistakes themselves—in their own minds.

Pretend that a woman looks ten years younger than she really is, and you've got her friendship for life.

Having just seen a picture of Willard and Moran as they were getting ready to fight we indignantly ask why the state of our nativity allowed such a big fellow to lick such a little one.

Nefarious Lie Nailed.
Notice: I understand there are a few old, long-tongued, tattling women and some half-raised men, telling me that I have deserted my family and run off with another woman. I want to say it is a lie and the people that are talking this are more apt to do that than I am. I have not deserted my family, nor never will. You can find me at the Hampton and Allen livery barn at all times.—J. P. Hampton—Adv. in the Kennett (Mo.) Democrat.
