Clara Kimball Young in "Camille." World Film Corporation presents the five-part photoplay, "Camille," based upon Alexandre Dumas' celebrated novel of the same name, and produced by Albert Capellani.

"Camille" will be presented at the Hub theatre tonight for the last time. Camille is the popular name of Marguerite Gautier, "the lady with the camellias," who is queen of the underworld. She is beautiful and absolutely unscrupulous in the gratification of her passions. A wealthy lover, de Varville, is at her feet, where he places his fortune, amounting to millions—of course Camille takes his money—but spurns his love.

Along comes young Armand, a sentimental young law student. Upon him the beautiful but vicious Camille casts an alluring eye; and Armand falls for her. He and Armand fight a duel, neither being killed.

Finally, Camille dies of a broken heart, signifying in the usual manner that she loved Armand and not de Varville.

Clara Kimball Young, in the part of Camille, has an opportunity of showing what a fine artist she is. "Camille" will be presented at the Hub theatre tonight for the last time.

BRUCE EVANS AT MARSHFIELD

Evangelist As Usual is Drawing and Doing Good Work on Cross Bay.

Bruce Evans, who made a great evangelistic hit at the Baptist church in this city last year, is now holding services at Marshfield, in the M. E. church, where he is making good. The Record says of him:

Bruce is a refreshing relief from the usual type of evangelist and does not work on the theory that converts are secured by frightening them into conversion but rather that if he can convince them they are better off when they have been converted they will not only make willing workers but they will stay "converted" which is what is really desired.

Bruce is not of the Sunday or Shaggon type and does not spend the evening telling the audience how mean and God-forsaken they are, but on the contrary emphasizes the joy and satisfaction of a Christian life. He sprinkles his discourse very freely with stories and witty sayings and keeps the attention of his audience from start to finish.

P. E. O.'s and the Bazaar. Three syllables we hope. And we also hope that the San Soucis are all what their name represents and we would like to get a good bet out of Mis-fits that he doesn't know what P. E. O. stands for.—Corvallis G. T.

PRETTY ACTRESS FEATURED IN VIA WIRELESS

The Globe Theatre tonight presents "Via Wireless," a story of a girl's heroism, featuring the pretty Gale Lane and Bruce McRae, two of Pathe's most talented stars. The story of the play is outlined herewith:

Marsh, a draughtsman in the gun factory of John Durant, is swindled by Edward Pinkney, Durant's general manager, out of the huge royalty to be paid should a gun of Marsh's invention prove a success. Pinkney loves Maisie, but is outwitted by Lieut. Somers, U. S. N.

Somers also has invented a gun which he gives to be cast to the Durant Iron Works, and which, if successful, will do Pinkney out of his expected graft on the Marsh invention.

Pinkney takes good care that the Somers gun is "killed" in making. He then misrepresents Somers to Maisie and her father, and though Maisie loves the Lieutenant, she feels she must give him up. Accompanied by her mother and Pinkney, she goes in the Durant yacht for a cruise. The boat hits a mine, and in the rush to leave her, Maisie is trapped in the wireless room. She sends out the S. O. S. signals taught her by Lieut. Somers. The Lieutenant, aboard a U. S. cruiser, arrives at the side of the doomed ship just in time to make a sensational rescue.

NEW STAR FEATURED IN "MERELY MARY ANN"

At the Rolfe theatre tonight and Saturday is offered a play quite out of the ordinary in Israel Zangwill's "Merely Mary Ann."

Mary Ann is leading the care-free existence of the average small girl in the average small town when her mother dies and leaves her in poverty. She herself openly declares her unwillingness to be an object of charity, and her family pastor casts about for some occupation for her. He finally decides that the Big City will offer Mary the most ready means of self-support, and secures for her employment as a maid in a Big City boarding house.

Unwittingly arousing the displeasure of her mistress Mary is cast out penniless and alone. By chance she secures work at a cheap boarding house at which Launcelot Melmont, a poor composer of musical comedies, boards, and the pair soon become warm friends. When Launcelot saves Mary from the persistent efforts of Sid, a dance hall habitue, to lead her into the life where she "can make all the money in the world," their friendship ripens into something stronger.

Mary is taken from the boarding house and placed with a wealthy family, and years later, after Launcelot has become famous, her foster-par-
