Vigilance for Good Service

EVERY Bell Telephone exchange has its wire chief. He is unknown to the subscriber, but his important task is to see that the talk tracks, both inside and outside the exchange, are kept constantly in good working order. Day and night, the work of testing the lines and apparatus goes on. Complaints are promptly followed by and breaks are often repaired before the subscriber knows of the trouble or is inconvenienced.

The constant vigilance of the wire chiefs keeps the 14,000,000 miles of talk tracks and the intricate central office equipment of the Bell system in readiness for instant service.

MAY ROBSON, FAMOUS COMEDienne, IN ALBANY

Will Be Seen in Live Comedy, "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt" Tonight.

When seen at her hotel today, Miss Robson, whose engagement opens here tonight in "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt," appeared in no sense one of America's leading theatrical stars, traveling from city to city all over the United States and Canada, but rather as a jolly wholesome, genial American mother, shorn of all the artificial ties of our modern life. Her personality is charming, and when one has listened to her narrations of her many amusing experiences, it is not hard to find the secret of her success in this, her greatest play. Miss Robson and her present company are now en route on a trip that will last about 45 weeks, starting from New York City early in September, then through New England, the North Atlantic states, the Middle West and to all the important cities of the Pacific coast—they return through cities of the northwest as far as Minneapolis, and into the corner of the iron country of Michigan and Wisconsin, returning to New York City about July 4. After which time she may play an engagement in London, providing the European war is at an end by that time.

Mr. Hugh McIntosh, the big theatrical magnate of Australia has been in correspondence with Miss Robson relative to playing a season in Australia, and into the British possessions incidentally, also arranging for her to appear in the Philippines and in the English speaking ports of the Orient.

The Chronicle Says: The big audience last night at Columbia Theatre approved their favorite comedienne vociferously. We all wore a smile which lasted till the final curtain.

The play and the production will provide any reasonable soul, not searching for problems, with an agreeable evening's entertainment which will be looked backward to with refreshing memories.

FOOLING THE BATTER.

Tactics and Tricks Used by the Big League Pitchers.

In the Woman's Home Companion is an article on pitching baseball curves by C. H. Claudy. In it he says:

"Few big league pitchers depend on many varieties of curve to 'fool' the batter. No matter what the effect of a wide and sweeping curve may be upon one of your teammates, a curve ball in the big league is as easy to hit as a straight one, provided the batter knows it is coming. But when a good pitcher gets to work on a batter he doesn't let him know what is coming.

"With three balls and two strikes almost any major league batter is entitled to believe that the next pitch will be a 'fast one splitting the plate.' But if the pitcher has his nerve with him it may be a sudden lull. Expecting the natural straight ball and finding about a tenth of a second before the ball gets to the plate that it is jumping in toward him, the batter has no time to change his 'set' and strikes out.

"The essence of any 'fooling' delivery, then, is its unexpectedness. To make use of this feature control of the 'fooling' delivery is necessary.

"And the easiest curve to control is the curve which is pitched most naturally.

"That is why the big league pitcher doesn't try to master the curves of every other pitcher, but sticks to those he can do best. The greatest pitcher of the game won fame for his 'fade-away,' the ball that withers and dies at the plate after starting like a cannon ball. But for every 'fade-away' Matty ever threw he pitched a dozen straight fast or slow balls, and they all came from the same motion. It is not knowing until the last fraction of a second whether the ball will go waist high plump into the catcher's mitt or weakly drop off to one side which makes the 'fade-away' a terror."

SUSPENDED ANIMATION.

Life That Looks Like Real Death, Yet Revives After Many Months.

One of the most extraordinary manifestations of life is a condition quite common among the lower animals and known as anabiosis, or suspended animation. The creature is to all appearances dead. The most refined means of observation cannot detect a sign of life. The blood has ceased to flow. The nerves no longer respond to any stimulation. There is neither respiration, elimination nor sensation. This state may last a long time, but given the proper conditions the creature will come to life again.

The lower we go in the scale of life the more pronounced is this state of neither life nor death.

Some remarkable experiments conducted by E. Shultz and A. Singol of Petrograd are described by the Berlin correspondent of the Scientific American. The experimenters dried roundworms till they were as thin as paper strips, then cut them into thin slices. When placed in water the tissues swelled to their normal proportions, and the pieces of worm resumed their life just as do those of any worm that is cut up.

TWO BIG TRIANGLE PLAYS AT ROLFE TONIGHT

A story of love and war characterized by the quaint German atmosphere of university, court and palace will be presented at the Rolfe tonight and Tuesday in "Old Heidelberg." It is described as one of the most beautiful releases in the Triangle program, and the cast is headed by Dorothy Gish and Wallace Reid.

Eddy Foy, the prince of stage pierrots, who has made more fun with his clowning and his acrobatics than any other comedian of the present day, was engaged by the Sennett-Keystone forces for the new series of Triangle film plays. Mr. Foy will be seen at the Rolfe tonight in "A Favorite Fool," a dramatization of circus life similar to some of the stage plays in which he was so popular.
