WEATHERFORD FOR CONGRESSMAN.

Albany people will be interested in knowing how the nomination of M. V. Weatherford for congressman is taking in the valley. Here are two emphatic expressions:

From the Benton Courier: Mark Weatherford of Albany has been nominated by the Democrats for congress. The Prohibition party of the state has endorsed him, and here is a tip that Courier readers can bank on, Mr. Hawley has a man against him this year who is going to win.

The independents (there are a lot of them in this congressional district) are not going to come down to support Hawley; the Prohibitionists are not going unanimously for their nominee and the Democrats to a man will support Weatherford.

Mr. Hawley is going to have his first real scrap for congress this fall. For years he has had the election almost handed to him, and he has appreciated it by being a standpat congressman in a progressive state; taking the stump in the New England states and working against what the voters of his own state voted for.

From Cannon's rule to the present day Mr. Hawley has consistently stood in with the eastern bunch of politicians and financiers and been their handy man in pinches. His voting record on roll calls is too open proof of this.

The Courier knows the people of this district are ready for rebellion, only needing a big enough leader to follow.

Mark Weatherford is big enough and this congressional district needs a change.

From the Gervais Star: Mrk V. Weatherford, one of the ablest young attorneys of the state, will be the Democratic candidate for representative in this district. There is a heavy majority against him, but if the voters will consider the ability of the two candidates, Weatherford will be elected.

PAYING ANIMALS.

We have always talked diversified farming and it is now a pretty generally established fact that a small farmer to be successful must practice this method. A small farmer who bought ten ewes last year calls our attention to his splendid profit for one year. He paid $70.00 for the ten ewes and it cost him $2.50 a head, or $25.00, for their maintenance for one year, which covered interest on money, shearing, cost of feed, etc., total cost for the ten ewes, $95.00. The ten ewes dropped ten lambs which sold for $6.00 a head, $60.00; the ewes sheared 100 pounds of wool, for which he received $35.00, a total of $95.00, which exactly pays for the ten ewes and their upkeep, leaving them clear at the end of the year. Of course everybody realizes that sheep and wool are very high at the present time, but if we should take an average of same in ten years we might find a result something like the following: Ten ewes at $3.50 a head, $35.00; maintenance, $25.00; total, $60.00. Ten lambs at $3.00 a head, $30; 100 pounds of wool at $1.80, $18.00; total $40.00, which under these less favorable circumstances, would leave the farmer ten ewes costing him only $12.00. From the above facts it would seem as if every small farmer should have a few well-bred ewes on his place.—Portland Livestock Report.

MISFITS

Deadman's Hill was certainly appropriately named.

Also the name of war—hell.

Oh, the sweet girl graduate, in a mass of white, how she shines.

The Congressional Magazine is the name of a production made up of remarks by Congressmen, now principally on the subject of preparedness, and therefore a warm magazine.

One of the features of the primary election was being voted for by one's friends, as a joke. Misfits appreciates four votes, all for different offices. If his friends had united on one office he might have been nominated a whoopin'.

Another awful warning comes against pitching horseshoes. A Philadelphia man recently committed suicide because he was beaten in a game.

Editorial in Corvallis Gazette-Times: osurfactvinate nadtwi mathm anth amat

Governor Withycombe remarked several months ago that he got the Benton Courier and found it very amusing. Editor Brown gets even with him as follows:

The governor went out in the primary campaign to dig a grave for Ben Olcott and roll him into it.

Moore was but a grave-digger, probably every voters in Benton county knew it. It was a personal fight between the governor and the secretary.

Olcott carried Benton, the governor's home county, by about 300 majority.

Olcott carried Corvallis, the governor's home city, by a good majority.

Olcott carried precinct No. 11. Governor Withycombe's own ward, by a majority of 7.

Olcott carried every precinct in Bend, the home of the governor's private secretary.

Olcott carried every precinct except one in Salem, the official home of the governor.

Olcott carried every county in Oregon, with one exception.

Olcott carried Multnomah county, home of Mr. Moore, the governor's conscript.

We wonder if Governor Withycombe will find this column of the Courier "amusing"?
