GREAT IS AUTOMOBILE.

The automobile has scored a notable triumph in E. G. Baker's transcontinental trip. With a single companion, a newspaper man who went along merely as a passenger, Mr. Baker made the distance from Los Angeles to New York, nearly 3500 miles, in seven and a half days.

That is only twice the time taken by the fastest through trains, which use a route more than 200 miles shorter. And in some important respects the automobile put the railroads to shame. Mr. Baker used only one car, and drove it every mile of the way himself. It takes 22 locomotives to make the same trip, and many changes of crews. The train, it must be remembered, has a smooth track all the way, and the automobiles has to travel through mountains, deserts, plains and swamps, with all sorts of highways and sometimes no highways at all. Mr. Baker was delayed by mud, sand, by rocky trails, by the blowing out of tires in the hot desert, by the accidental loss of fuel and oil. And yet, for long sections of the trip, he made better time than the United States mails. A letter mailed at Los Angeles before he started, and addressed to him at Dodge City, Kansas, arrived there two hours after him. A postcard was mailed to him at Emporia, Kansas, just after he had passed through, addressed to him at New York City. He beat it by an hour.

This is not only a great sporting achievement for the driver. It means something for the development of the automobile. As a test of mechanical perfection and endurance, it is worth incomparably more than all the purposeless racing of high-power cars on speedways. For this was a standard car such as hundreds of thousands of citizens are driving every day. And if such a car can cross the continent now in seven and a half days what may be expected after a few more years of automobile evolution and improved highways?—Ex.

SERIOUS MATTER.

The People's Forum, or similar department in the daily newspaper in which the man in the street gives expression to his real opinions, is an excellent place in which to find the drift of public sentiment. These letters to the editor disclose an increasing number of Republicans who feel it their patriotic duty to support President Wilson in November.

"Reader," writing to the "People's Forum" of the New York World of May 17, says: "I am a republican, but I should like to see Wilson have a second term." He adds: "Wilson is the best solution of the problem. Let the republicans have a good candidate for 1920, if the Democrats can't get one. We want a man to keep us out of war, and one of the intellectual type like Wilson. This election is a serious matter."

MISFITS

The following diary of a stomach is given the Democrat by a medical student. It was published in the Los Angeles Times, and ought to make the average person sit up and take notice:

10:00 a. m.—Oh dear! another warm day. Wonder if I'll be abused as I was yesterday. If I am, I'm going to strike. Just disposed of a half chewed breakfast. We ran for the train which meant that I was so tired and so jiggled about that it took me twice as long to do my work. Hope she gives me an hour or two of complete rest before anything else comes my way.

10:30 a. m.—Two glasses of ice water have just arrived. It will take all the energy I can pump up in the next hour or two, to warm me to normal again.

10:50 a. m.—Half chewed breakfast did not satisfy her, and she has bought some peanuts and started eating them.

12:00 m.—Peanuts have dribbled along steadily since last entry. Think she has finished them though.

12:30 p. m.—Decided she wasn't very hungry, and instead of a good solid dinner, sent me down a cold egg-nog leavy with chocolate. Could have managed it alright if it hadn't been so cold, but that makes it terribly hard to deal with.

1:10 p. m.—More ice water.

1:40 p. m.—Was mistaken about the peanuts, she found another handful in the bottom of the bag and now I have them to attend to.

2:05 p. m.—More ice water.

3:10 p. m.—She has lifted some heavy books, and as usual used my muscles instead of her arm muscles, as she should have done. Tired me more than digesting a six course dinner.

3:20 p. m.—Some one has bought us a box of caramels, and she has started on that.

4:30 p. m.—Have received something like half a pound of caramels, since last entry. She has just said, "O dear, I don't feel a bit well, I know the milk in that egg-nog must have been sour."

6:30 p. m.—We played a set of tennis before dinner, and here I am all tired out and a dinner to handle.

6:50 p. m.—We are invited out to have a soda before going home. Had a lemon phosphate and then ran for the train.

7:30 p. m.—Fried potatoes, cucumbers, veal and canned blueberries! What do you know about that?

7:45 p. m.—We are going down for a chocolate walnut College ice.

8:20 p. m.—Got home and found some one had some lemonade. She drank two glasses. That on top of the College ice settle it. I strike!

8:30 p. m.—Have sent back the College ice and lemonade.

8:40 p. m.—Returned the blueberries.

8:50 p. m.—And the veal

9:10 p. m.—She has sent for the Doctor, says that College ice must have had something the matter with it. Her mother says it is probably the weak stomach she inherited from her father.

9:30 p. m.—Doctor says it is just a little upset due to the weather. GOOD-NIGHT!
