LANE ON BIG ARMY.

A speech by Senator Harry Lane, will be read with interest by Oregonians. He said:

"I am opposed to the creation of a large standing army which in addition to being a burden on the people I fear will later along be used to override the liberty and rights of the citizens of this country."

"I will favor and endeavor to secure an amendment to a bill to enlist from one half to one million men for periods of from six to nine months, pay them 'ruling' wages and employ them in building highways across and throughout the country, at the same time training them in rudimentary military tactics, say, two days each week. By pursuing this course we could turn back into private life about a million healthy young men each year who would not be ruined by life in barracks and we would secure the roads which are badly needed."

"One man in a trench armed with a machine gun can defeat a hundred men marching in dress parade order against him, and the old order of 'hay foot straw foot' style of military drilling has gone never to return."

"In regard to the navy I would say that so many millions of dollars have been frittered away and lost by paying extortionate overcharges for an inferior quality of armor plate for battleships, and for munitions of war to private contractors that I am not in favor of throwing away another dollar in that way. We have expended hundreds of millions for preparedness and been left defenseless."

I would favor a bill providing for the construction of government owned and operated plants for the manufacture of all such vessels and armor plate, powder mines, aeroplanes and other means of defense such as we need to safeguard this country from invasion."

I believe that we should place the country in a condition to protect itself from invasion but not for aggressive warfare or the invasion of any other country. In order to do this we do not need seventeen million dollar super-dreadnaughts, which become out of date and useless in a few years, but should construct powerful coast defense vessels, submarines, submarines, aeroplanes, hydroplanes and mines, and place large guns at all important and accessible places along our coasts, all of which, as I said before, should be constructed in government plants and at the lowest possible cost to the people of this country."

During the present war now raging in Europe we have not been neutral but have furnished hundreds of millions of dollars worth of death dealing devices to some of the warring nations which have been used to kill the people of other friendly countries who are at peace with us. They resent our conduct and I fear after the war is over (if they are in a position to do so) will demand an explanation and perhaps reparation from us, and the innocent may be made to suffer for the acts of those who have profited from the nefarious traffic."

MISFITS

An exchange makes the startling announcement that in coca cola there is only 1 to 37,000 ratio or practically none.

The millionaire is as much a criminal as the day laborer if he flagrantly violates the laws of the country.

The good old mother sitting in her arm chair may be ten times as patriotic as the man who shouts the fact from the house tops.

True patriotism is deeper than tongue can express.

There is no question about the genuineness of the loyalty to our government of the average citizen. Men have different ways of expressing it.

A paper was received with a big notice in the corner of the wrapper, headed "Hi, You! Listen," underscored. Then follows a story about how a man who reads is on the way to make millions. Which is a fair sample of the charlatanism of the day.

The Democrat's waste basket is about the busiest place in the shop.

Every day come all manner of circulars with enormous propositions offering colossal opportunities for gigantic advantages.

The circus is not the only exaggerator in the world.

Was Insured.

The boy stood on the burning deck, his head was in a whirl; his eyes and mouth were full of hair, his arms were full of girl. She had a strange hold on him which made him squirm at that, and, as the flames rolled on, by heck she pinned him to the mat. Then to't again, catch as-catch can, a nelson she secured; the ship blew up, but they did not—'cause Willie was insured.—Insurance Critic.

Father's Boyhood.

"When I was you," my father said, "At five a. m. I jumped from bed and fed the stock and brought in wood And did just everything I could." (Then Grandma smiled the strangest way But didn't have a word to say.) "But now most boys aren't worth their salt. The friends they choose are most at fault, For my best friends I chose a book." Then grandma shot the strangest look, And added with the slightest shrug, "Like that you read behind the rug." —Carlton Fisher in Farm and Fireside.

He Laughed Out Loud.

"Mr. Jones had become the father of twins. The minister stopped him in the street to congratulate him. "Well, Jones," he said, "I hear that the Lord has smiled on you." "Smiled on me?" repeated Jones. "He laughed out loud."
