COL. E. HOFER RESIGNS.

Says College Boards Should Be Combined. Colleges Costing Too Much.

In handing in his resignation as a member of the board of regents of Monmouth Normal, E. Hofer, generally called Co., makes the following interesting statement:

I cannot consistently serve longer on any such board, as I believe all the institutions of higher education should be under one board of three persons and that the people of this state are being taxed too much for higher education.

For the present biennial period the appropriations for this purpose are $1,991,582.40, and the ten other departments of state government cost only $1,756,478.87. Under separate boards the three institutions of higher education cost $235,103.63 more than all the other institutional expenses of state government.

I believe under one board of three persons applying business principles and not dominated by local interests of the institutions themselves, duplications could be avoided and the expense of the higher education reduced about one-half. Such a measure has always been opposed by the institutions themselves and no reform is possible under the present system.

JANE LEE HATES VILLIAN AND SHE SHOWS IT, TOO

Yes, there is real venom sometimes in the making of movies. And it helps the director to make the movie move.

For example, in William Fox's masterful production, "A Wife's Sacrifice," which comes to the Rolfe Friday, the villain Peppe (Stuart Holmes) gives a coin to a hand organ grinder, who has a real monkey to attract attention and coins.

Now little Jane Lee, one of Fox's tots, hates monkeys. But she hates villains more. Holmes makes such a capital villain that little Jane cannot prevent her hatred from showing, just as the children (and some grownups) cannot help hissing the bad man in the melodrama.

It chances that little Jane in "A Wife's Sacrifice" has to show her hatred for Peppe (Mr. Holmes in the flesh). She does it by kicking at him and sticking out her tongue, which is the worst insult the little girls know. One even notes in the picture that there is real hatred in it. And there is.
